Berlin's Pink Press Declares That Western Powers Must Leave

BERLIN, June 24—The Soviet-controlled press in Berlin demanded flatly today that the Western powers leave the former German capital.

The editorial demand came on the heels of the shutting off of Russian-supplied electric power in the western sectors and the suspension of all rail traffic between Berlin and the western occupation zones.

The German newspaper Taegliche Rundschau, which is the Soviet's organ, ran a front page editorial proclaiming:

"There is no legal basis for a further stay in Berlin by the British, French and Americans. "The Soviet military authority is the only legitimate occupation authority in Berlin now. There's no use in the Western Allies shedding crocodile tears when they have been asked, and must leave Berlin."

* * *

THE NEWSPAPER asserted that the break-up of the Allied Control Council for Germany last March made it "impossible" for the four-power kommandatura, which rules Berlin, to continue.

The control council has been inactive since March 20, when the Soviet delegation walked out of a meeting.

The U. S. army provost marshal's office disclosed that a full military police and constabulary "alert" is in effect throughout the American sector.

This zone is ringed by a force of 57 patrols of infantry plus armored cars.

Two Russian soldiers who lost their way in the American zone enroute to Berlin from Leipzig were detained temporarily under the new precautionary rules.

The provost marshal said he had received four unsubstantiated reports of brief detention by the Russians of American personnel.

As the situation now stands, no rail traffic—either German or Allied—is moving into the western sectors of Berlin. The British and French therefore have no alternative but to utilize the Amercan air lift.

The Soviets balked showdown attempts of American, British and French representatives by failing to attend a scheduled meeting of the Kommandatura's vital public works and utilities committee.

Tell-Tale Balloting Is Awaited

Dewey Tops List Of 7 Candidates

PHILADELPHIA, June 24—The Republican national convention came up today to its hottest session—politically and weather-wise—the crucial balloting on a field of seven presidential candidates.

The flag-bedecked convention hall was steaming with heat and rumors of eleventh-hour "deals" a few minutes before the scheduled opening of the balloting session this afternoon.

The convention band blared out with "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean" as aisles on the convention floor filled with delegates trying to find their way to sticky seats.

The spectator galleries were only sparsely occupied but this was to be a full house in every sense of the word.

Delegates were bleary-eyed from the seven-hour session which ended at 3:02 a. m. today after a field of seven candidates had formally been placed in nomination.

GOV. THOMAS E. Dewey of New York, holds a victory-tinged lead for the nomination, but the sturdy opposition of his "big four" rivals casts a slight haze of doubt over the outcome.

Dewey is confident of victory on the second ballot. His managers say he may win it on the first ballot. They admit he is doomed if he does not win it on the third.

His "big four" rivals says he is definitely stopped.

Dewey headquarters have taken on the tinglingly expentant spirit of "Twas the Night Before Christmas"—The only big difference being that there is plenty stirring, from delegates to highballs.

Certainly visions of sugar plums—including the biggest political sugar plum of all, the presidency—are dancing through everybody's head.

When pencils are poised or strangers are present, no one of the inner circle will come right out and utter the vulgar words: "It's in the bag."

But back them into a quiet corner, whisper, "How does it look?" and they smile with the impossible-to-conceal smugness of children who have seen Santa Claus arrive on the roof.

UN Seeking 'Task Force'

Rapid Expansion Of Patrol Sought

LAKE SUCCESS, June 24—Important consultations are underway today between UN Secretary General Trygve Lie and leading delegations on rapid expansion of the United Nations security guards into a mobile "task force."

The tiny group of 50 blue-uniformed UN "soldiers" now doing patrol and inspection duty in Palestine is only the nucleus of an armed body which Lie hopes to expand into an effective enforcement instrument.

The top official at Lake Success disclosed that the response from a number of the delegations—including the United States and France—on his project for a UN force of 5,000 armed men has been "satisfactory and favorable."

Lie also said that next week he will hold informal consultations on the formation of such a "task force" with the military staff committee. The committee is a body of generals and admiralh representing the big five powers.

* * *

THE SECRETARY general is confident that step-by-step he can enlist sufficient support for his scheme among the 58 delegations to make feasible the plan for a volunteer security guard legion.

He hopes to call on the general assembly in Paris for approval of a blueprint now being drafted for preliminary presentation to the Security Council.

It is understood that one reason for Lie's eagerness to push the expansion plans of his security guards is the strong intention displayed by Count Folke Bernadotte to press the Arabs and Jews to accept a neutralized Jerusalem.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

One thing a defeated candidate should never forget about the GOP convention—he had nice weather for it.

There were very few times that a candidate couldn't have gone for a nice long walk and the wonder of it is that more of them didn't go sooner.

There's nothing so touching as a favorite son yielding a nomination. He does it with the willingness of a traffic cop who has been asked to eat a parking ticket.

It may be said of the Republicans that while they disagreed on candidates they conceded the November election to themselves.

In fact they referred to "the future President" so ofter, I hear Harry was thinking of coming on from Washington for another inspection trip—they're cheaper than political trips.

Ohio's Bingo Law Is Upheld

COLUMBUS, June 24—The constitutionality of Ohio's famed 'bingo law" was upheld today by the state supreme court.

The law, in effect, authorizes the conduct of bingo games, lotteries and raffles if they are exclusively for charitable purposes—"not for his own profit" is the phrase used in the statute.

The court upheld the dismissal of an indictment against Murray S. Parker, indicted in Akron for operating a keno game. Murray demurred to the indictment on the ground that the indictment tailed to allege that he operated the game "for his own profit."

Man In Jail After Twice Dipping Into Ex-Wife's Cash Registers

SPRINGFIELD, June 24—Springfield police had their man under lock and key today but it may take a while to untangle the circumstances surrounding his arrest.

Solidly lodged in durance vile was Bob Gannon, 31, of Springfield. The rest of the story is as clear and orderly as a plate of spaghetti.

However, this is the way police tell it:

Gannon appeared in Urbana last night riding in a Circle Cab from Springfield. Somewhat short of cash he walked into a local restaurant, helped himself at the cash register and paid off the cabby who waited patiently outside.

The restaurant owner, his ex-wife, complained and the cab driver was picked up on a robbery charge. A call also went out for the missing Gannon.

AT 2:45 A. M. today the culprit did an encore. This time in Springfield and again in a restaurant owned by his ex-wife.

He paid a Green Cab driver out of the till at the Castle Rock restaurant, and another alarm went out for a cab driver and Gannon.

This time police tracked him down and flushed their quarry in a clothes closet at his ex-wife's home.

EVELAND UNDER $5,000 BOND

3 Alleged Gambling Chiefs Secretly Indicted By Jury

Gambling in Circleville yielded Wednesday after two secret indictments were returned against three alleged leaders of the local numbers racket and a horse racing bookie house.

On arraignment Thursday morning in Pickaway County common pleas court, innocent pleas were entered by Wayne Leist, Robert Pickens, Gerald Hanley and Harold O. Eveland. Eveland was accused of embezzling $8,588.04 of state and county funds while he was justice of the peace for Circleville Township.

Although Eveland's indictment was made public Wednesday, the remaining two were unannounced until Thursday pending the signing of warrants for arrests.

Tom Renick, defense attorney for Eveland, waived the 48-hour period for service of the indictment. Judge William D. Radcliff placed former magistrate under $5,000 bond and placed him in custody of the sheriff until bond is posted.

Eveland's case tied in with the three other men because he reportedly lost a considerable amount of money in gambling establishments. Prosecuting Attorney Kenneth Robbins quoted Eveland as saying "an uncontrollable urge to gamble" was responsible for the alleged shortage in funds."

Relief From Heat Ahead; Mercury Inches Up To 96

By International News Service

Relief from the heat—which indirectly is blamed for the deaths of at least five persons in Ohio—was promised by the weather bureau Thursday.

Forecasters said that cooler air is moving in from the west and will level off temperatures to near normal readings by Friday.

The mercury soared into the 90s most everywhere in the state Wednesday in the second day of the first torrid wave of the season. Swimming accidents and heat prostrations accounted for the reported deaths.

A cloud coverage, with some showers, was holding down temperatures in parts of Ohio Thursday, but temperatures in the sizzling 90s were expected.

Circleville and Columbus led the parade of high temperatures Wednesday, each with an official 96 degrees. It was 95 in Chesapeake and Sandusky and 94 in Cleveland and Toledo. June 23 heat records were shattered in most cases.

Observers said that the high range over the state Friday would be between 80 and 86 degrees, approximately 10 degrees below the range of the last two days.

CIO Hiring Halls Said Illegal

WASHINGTON, June 23—A National Labor Relations board trial examiner ruled today that the hiring hall as operated by the CIO National Maritime Union on the Great Lakes violates the Taft-Hartley law.

The decision by Examiner Howard Myers is the first ruling by any NLRB unit on union hiring halls which are the main issue in the threatened strike of more than 100,000 maritime workers.

Myers ruled in a case involving the NMU and four Great Lakes shipping companies that the hiring hall is "clearly repugnant to the act." The Taft-Hartley statute forbids a closed shop.

"How any girl can submit herself to that ordeal is beyond me. If nakedness were eliminated from beauty contests, the whole thing would fall to pieces."

Ohioan Booming Taft Gives Out With Bell, Beller To Turn Convention Hall Into Bedlam

PHILADELPHIA, June 24—If Sen. Robert A. Taft emerges from this convention as destiny's tot, he may owe his nomination to an indefatigable man with a cow bell and a mule-skinner's voice.

The cow bell and the skinner's bellow whipped up the loudest, noisiest, longest and most enthusiastic demonstration of the night-long nominating session when Ohio's favorite son was offered to delegates.

Rep. George Bender, (R). Ohio, convention floor manager for Taft, by an unexpected and surprise maneuver, captured the microphones on the speaker's rostrum the moment Ohio's Sen. John Bricker, his white mane flying, placed Taft's name in nomination.

He kept the Taft demonstration rolling for 37 decibel-shattering minutes, many minutes longer than the tumult and the shouting for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Up to this point, the Dewey headquarters has been notably quicker in out-huckstering its rivals.

It has thought up door prizes, give-aways and even a fashion show to attract the crowds.

By the simple expedient of walking up to the mikes, shaking his cow bell and barbershording the Taft campaign song "I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover," Bender finally got the drop on his opponents.

Bender, a big man with an alarming lung power, is not apt to be tapped in the near future by the Metropolitan Opera Co.

He is not a man to be daunted by competition, however, and no matter what the band played or the organ peeled forth, Bender gave with "I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover."

His enthusiasm and noise were contagious. The Taft crowd, eager to show its loyalty to its man, needed little urging to put on the biggest and best show of the night. Paced by Bender, the Taftites turned the hall into bedlam.

Bender's virtuso performance, whipping up the Taft enthusiasm to an impressive frenzy, may in part have helped redress the balance between the Dewey and Taft forces by demonstrating the strong Taft sentiment harbored here.

If his man makes the White House, Bender surely deserves the hog-calling post in the cabinet.

Rep. George Bender, (R). Ohio, convention floor manager for Taft, by an unexpected and surprise maneuver, captured the microphones on the speaker's rostrum the moment Ohio's Sen. John Bricker, his white mane flying, placed Taft's name in nomination.

He kept the Taft demonstration rolling for 37 decibel-shattering minutes, many minutes longer than the tumult and the shouting for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Up to this point, the Dewey headquarters has been notably quicker in out-huckstering its rivals.

It has thought up door prizes, give-aways and even a fashion show to attract the crowds.

By the simple expedient of walking up to the mikes, shaking his cow bell and barbershording the Taft campaign song "I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover," Bender finally got the drop on his opponents.

Bender, a big man with an alarming lung power, is not apt to be tapped in the near future by the Metropolitan Opera Co.

He is not a man to be daunted by competition, however, and no matter what the band played or the organ peeled forth, Bender gave with "I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover."

His enthusiasm and noise were contagious. The Taft crowd, eager to show its loyalty to its man, needed little urging to put on the biggest and best show of the night. Paced by Bender, the Taftites turned the hall into bedlam.

Bender's virtuso performance, whipping up the Taft enthusiasm to an impressive frenzy, may in part have helped redress the balance between the Dewey and Taft forces by demonstrating the strong Taft sentiment harbored here.

Bishop Outlaws Beauty Contests

Bishop John J. Swint announced yesterday he would excommunicate any girl who takes part in the exhibitions he called "totally pagan" and "absolutely immoral." The bishop said:

"How any girl can submit herself to that ordeal is beyond me. If nakedness were eliminated from beauty contests, the whole thing would fall to pieces."

Tell-Tale Balloting Is Awaited

dential nomination were formally placed in the GOP balloting contest during an historic seven-hour session which ended at 3:02 a. m. today.

Tired, perspiring delegates streamed from the convention hall after Chairman Joseph W. Martin Jr., banged his gavel for the last time and announced that the convention would reconvene this afternoon.

It was a wearing but dramatic session during which these presidential candidates were formally placed in nomination in this order:

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the front-running candidate under fire from his opponents for staging a "blitz."

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Dewey's chief contender.

Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, a leading "dark horse" for any compromise.

Sen. Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut, a "favorite son" and possible vice-presidential nominee.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Last night's long session had more than its share of colorful and noisy demonstrations as the candidates were nominated and seconded for first place on the GOP 1948 ticket.

Five hours after the session began, the names of the "big four" candidates—Dewey, Taft, Warren and Stassen—had been placed in nomination to the accompaniment of explosive demonstrations.

Taft, locked in a desperate struggle for delegate support against Dewey, touched off the longest demonstration when his name was placed in nomination by Sen. John W. Bricker, his junior senate colleague.

Like the other leading candidates, Taft was not in convention hall to witness the 37-minute outburst from the delegates.

Dewey won first position in the historic nominating session when Alabama yielded its position to Pennsylvania so Sen. Edward Martin could put the New Yorker's name officially before the convention.

Martin, who injected fire into the Dewey "blitz" by jumping to the governor's side, was stopped momentarily in his tribute to the candidate by a burst of boos which echoed through the hall.

But a frenzy of approval came with the 18-minute demonstration staged for Dewey a few minutes later.

Warren of California followed Taft, his name being placed in nomination by Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul of the University of California. Hopeful Californians stormed into the aisles and paraded for 23 minutes, shouting praises for their rugged candidate.

* * *

REP. WALTER H. Judd of Minnesota did the nominating honors for Stassen, ex-governor of the Gopher State, and the young liberal candidate was given one of the most forceful ovations of the drawn-out session. The demonstration ran for 24 minutes.

Each candidate was allowed 15 minutes for the primary nominating speech and five minutes for each of the four seconding speeches.

Shortly before 3 a. m., the nominating speech was made for Baldwin of Cennecticut by Mrs. Frances Redick and the still-crowded auditorium awaited Connecticut's demonstration for an outstanding "favorite son."

At this point, Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, permanent chairman of the convention, announced that seconding speeches would be limited to one minute instead of five minutes each.

This was an effort to clean up the session's business in time for the delegates to get some sleep before today's balloting.

At 2:10 a. m., Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan stepped up to the platform microphones and in a brief, dignified speech, formally nominated Vandenberg.

There was no parade for Vandenberg, although his supporters roused the convention with their enthusiasm in a nine-minute demonstration.

Harlan W. Kelley of Milwaukee, placed the name of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in nomination at 2:30 a. m. as the proceedings speeded up.

The session was recessed by Martin at 3:02 a. m. EDT without any other names being placed in nomination.

Livestock Sale Volume Increased By Sheep Intake

With the reestablishment of a substantial sheep market at the Wednesday auctions of the Pickaway County Livestock Association stockyard, this week's volume of sales soared back over the 1,000-head mark.

A total of 927 was marketed last Wednesday. This week there were 1,069 sold.

The sheep market jumped up to 116 head Wednesday after several weeks of trading with the market quoted as being "light".

Prices in general rose a trifle over last week's quotations, which were, themselves, high compared to the prices given the past month or two.

In the hog market, volume increased 65 head when 188 head were auctioned compared to the 123 marketed last Wednesday. Prices in the hog market were nigher for the better grades of stock, and remained nearly the same in the lesser grades.

Hog receipts, which last week totaled 700 head, decreased 50 head Wednesday with only 650 marketed. Prices were up with largest increases noted in the choicer grades.

* * *

CALF RECEIPTS totalled 115 head Wednesday, an increase of 11 head as compared to the 104 on market last Wednesday. Prices were up for the good-to-choice grade, but the other two markets showed slight decreases in price from last week's quotations.

Israeli Troops Hunt Irgunists

TEL AVIV, June 24—Steel-helmeted Israeli troops combed Tel Aviv and its vicinity today for members of the extremist Irgun Zvai Leumi. Thus far, 70 Irgunists have been arrested.

In Jerusalem, an Irgunist leader called on the holy city's Jews to help overthrow the Tel Aviv regime. He spoke from an armored car at an outdoor meeting in Jerusalem's Zion Square.

The recent conflict between the Irgun and Haganah, Israel's army, began when the Irgun attempted to land guns at Tel Aviv, in violation of the four-week Jewish-Arab truce.

Reports from Haifa said that the Irgun is now under orders to "go underground" and not to recognize the present government.

Pickens and Hanley were accused in a joint indictment for recording wagers for beting on horse races in the old Pickens business building on South Court street and for using a telegraph instrument to obtain information on race results.

Both men were placed under $495 bond each. Arrangements were being made at noon to post bond by all the men who were brought in for arraignment.

Although Eveland was arrested Wednesday evening and released to appear in court Thursday, arrest warrants on the latter three men were not issued until Thursday morning.

Prosecuting Attorney Kenneth M. Robbins said the gambling establishments were closed down. The Pickens Business Building is located across the street from Circleville city hall, home of the police department.

Equipment used in the bookie house was shipped out of town Tuesday night, officials disclosed.

No time has yet been set for hearings.

Traffic Victim's Is Paid $250

CLEVELAND, June 24—Mrs. Mary Behm, 63, widow of a traffice victim today can thank the unorthodox generosity of Cuyahoga County officials for an award of $250.

Mrs. Behm was given the money after Common Pleas Judge Clifford L. Belt, assigned from Belmont County, ordered James A. Penberthy, 22, found guilty of second-degree manslaughter in the death of her husband, to pay the widow the money.

Penberthy's car skidded through a traffic signal and crushed Frank Behm, 71, against a pole March 7.

Traffic Victim's Is Paid $250

CLEVELAND, June 24—Mrs. Mary Behm, 63, widow of a traffice victim today can thank the unorthodox generosity of Cuyahoga County officials for an award of $250.

Mrs. Behm was given the money after Common Pleas Judge Clifford L Belt, assigned from Belmont County, ordered James A. Penberthy, 22, found guilty of second-degree manslaughter in the death of her husband, to pay the widow the money.

Penberthy's car skidded through a traffic signal and crushed Frank Behm, 71, against a pole March 7.

Taft's Little Eva Target Of Suit

PHILADELPHIA, June 24—Little Eva, Sen. Robert A. Taft's 500-pound baby elephant mascot, is the target of an attachment suit.

The court action was filed in Philadelphia by Joseph Wallace, a former employe of Dailey Bros. Circus, owners of the elephant. Wallace claims he underwent amputation of an arm as a result of an injury while working for the circus.

He posted $10,000 bond to obtain the attachment. When the writ is served, an equal bond will be necessary to release the pachyderm.

Kentucky Hit By Cincy Judge

CINCINNATI, June 24—Cincinnati's criminal court Judge, Dennis J. Ryan thinks Kentucky is unloading all its bad men on Ohio.

In sentencing Neal Hurley, 23, and Otis Smith, 19, both of Manchester, Ky., to indeterminate sentences for house-breaking, Ryan said:

"The good people of Kentucky are getting rid of the crooks and they're coming to Ohio."

BY RUBBING the boy's body with large coatings of soap, police, firemen and bridge workers managed to rescue Harry Charleville, 10, St. Louis. The lad had been caught in the girders of a bridge and so tightly was he trapped that it was necessary to slide him out inch-by-inch with the aid of soap. (International)

Deputies Set Speech Study

ELYRIA, June 24—Lorain County's 13 sheriff's deputies are learning to talk.

Sheriff Carl R. Finegan believes that it is just as important at times to be able to make a public speech as it is to shoot a gun.

So, in line with his belief, the sheriff is introducing his 13 men to the art of public speaking.

The sheriff recently organized a public speaking class and engaged Prof. John Grafton of the Niagara school of speech, Cleveland, as instructor.

Presbyterians Wind Up Parley

WOOSTER, June 24—Ohio Presbyterians moved toward adjournament today with final reports of adult synod and synodical scheduled for the last convention session on the campus of Wooster college.

In election of officers by the synod of youths last night, Robert Lodwick of Cincinnati was elected moderator of the fellowship. Lodwick was named vice-moderator in 1947 and became moderator last November upon resignation of the previous moderator.

busy." An official source said that military police patrols in the U. S. sector of Berlin have been reinforced with armored cars during the current "period of unrest."

A spokesman for the American military government declared that the new Russian measures will force a showdown on occupation of Berlin within two months.

He said that during this period the Allies either must arrange what he called a "fantastic" aerial supply system or withdraw from the city if they are unable to obtain a modification of the Russian orders.

point include the right of American citizens to refer to the Hague international court disputes which they may have over the use of Marshall Plan aid.

They also concern the right of American firms to participate equally with the French in the new development of certain French natural resources, especially those scarce in the United States.

French newspapers of all shades of political opinion condemn these conditions as an intolerable infringement on the sovereignty of France.

Couple Held; Abandons Tots

CLEVELAND, June 24—Laverne J. Ryel, 34, and his wife, Alice, 25, were held in custody today by Cleveland police pending filing of charges against them for abandoning their two children.

The children, Laverne Jacqueline, 2, and Geraldine Marie, 10 months, were found in a hallway of a nearby housing project yesterday.

Police said Mrs. Ryel, a dishwasher, told them she had decided to get rid of the children in the hope that someone else would give them better care. She added that they were being evicted soon after moving several times in the past six months because of the children.

$50 In Cash Said Missing

The theft of nearly $50 in currency and a check for an unspecified amounts was reported to Circleville police Thursday morning.

Notice of the theft was given by Mrs. James Humphrey of East Ohio street, who told police the amount had been taken from her key case.

The case was found on North Scioto street early Thursday and returned to her, but without the money. She told police she had no idea "how it happened to be found on North Scioto street" since she had not been in that area since it has been missed.

Machinery Picture Is Improving

New Farm Gear Still Scarce

COLUMBUS, June 24—Prospects for Ohio farmers getting new farm machinery during the balance of 1948 are better than they were last year but the supply still is going to be short of demand, in the opinion of agricultural engineers at Ohio State university.

Most of the gain will be in small size tractors and in combines, the machinery experts believe.

One disturbing factor in the farm machinery field is the inclusion of such equipment among the items used to improve international relations. The proportion of farm machinery exported may be higher than during times of normal export trade. Only 10 percent of all U. S. farm machinery is imported.

The number of motor vehicles turned out in 1948 may top the record of 5,350,000 units set in 1929. The 1947 total was 4,800,000 autos and trucks.

* * *

THERE ALSO will be a considerable upturn in the amount of electrical equipment manufactured in 1948, as compared with the 1947 output.

Prices of farm power tools and of the fuel to run them increased considerably in 1947. The present situation does not afford much hope of a downturn in prices as long as the export demand continues and wage rates in factories stay high.

The agricultural engineers recommend cutting machinery costs by a thorough check of machines now owned so needed repairs and adjustments can be made before the machines are used in the field. Fuel costs for tractor operation can be reduced 10 percent by proper adjustment of the carburetor and the ignition system.

Sales records at baseball games show that when a contest becomes close and excitement runs high, the sale of peanuts, hot dogs and all other refreshments falls markedly.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

To make one ton of steel, the railroads haul approximately four tons of ore, coal, coke, scrap iron and limestone.

DDT Emulsion Helps Halt Flies

Spraying a one percent DDT emulsion on poultry manure two days before the manure was removed from the dropping boards, which were cleaned once a week, gave 100 percent fly control at the Hawaii agricultural experiment station.

The emulsion was applied at the rate of one pint per 30 square feet of area.

The addition of lime twice a week to the manure before use of the DDT treatment reduced odor and moisture and reduced the number of flies, but apparently decreased DDT efficiency in the opinion of poultry specialists.

They let the Wives in!

The ex-GI's of our town entertained their wives the other night at one of their "feeds" of hamburger sandwiches and ice cold beer. (The girls had hinted that they'd like to see what went on when their husbands got together!)

Being wary, the boys provided chicken sandwiches and cake and cider—for those wives who might have other tastes. But though they were grateful for the choice, most of the wives agreed that hamburger sandwiches and beer were a mighty pleasant combination.

After the "feed" the husbands took their wives on at a game of darts, and later they played "Indications." The party broke up around ten, with the boys agreeing that it was mighty successful.

From where I sit, it's this companionship among young couples today, and their moderation in a sensible beverage like beer, that's won the younger generation such a wholesome reputation.

Machinery Picture Is Improving

New Farm Gear Still Scarce

COLUMBUS, June 24—Prospects for Ohio farmers getting new farm machinery during the balance of 1948 are better than they were last year but the supply still is going to be short of demand, in the opinion of agricultural engineers at Ohio State university.

Most of the gain will be in small size tractors and in combines, the machinery experts believe.

One disturbing factor in the farm machinery field is the inclusion of such equipment among the items used to improve international relations. The proportion of farm machinery exported may be higher than during times of normal export trade. Only 10 percent of all U. S farm machinery is imported.

The number of motor vehicles turned out in 1948 may top the record of 5,350,000 units set in 1929. The 1947 total was 4,800,000 autos and trucks.

THERE ALSO will be a considerable upturn in the amount of electrical equipment manufactured in 1948, as compared with the 1947 output.

Prices of farm power tools and of the fuel to run them increased considerably in 1947. The present situation does not afford much hope of a downturn in prices as long as the export demand continues and wage rates in factories stay high.

Experts Eye Frozen Food Picture

Dollar Value Report Readied

WOOSTER, June 24—Use of frozen foods has increased manyfold in recent years. Many consumers are interested in how much the food dollar buys in frozen products in comparison to canned and fresh products.

In order to get a measure of this, R. W. Sherman and W. L. Lenox, rural economists for the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, compared foods as to price and net weight per package over a 3-month period in early 1948 in Columbus.

This was done at several representative types of food stores over the entire period of time.

In addition to obtaining the comparative prices it was decided to have foods in all three forms tested for quality so that the price comparisons would mean more. These tests were made for the Department of Rural Economics and Rural Sociology by the Department of Horticulture.

* * *

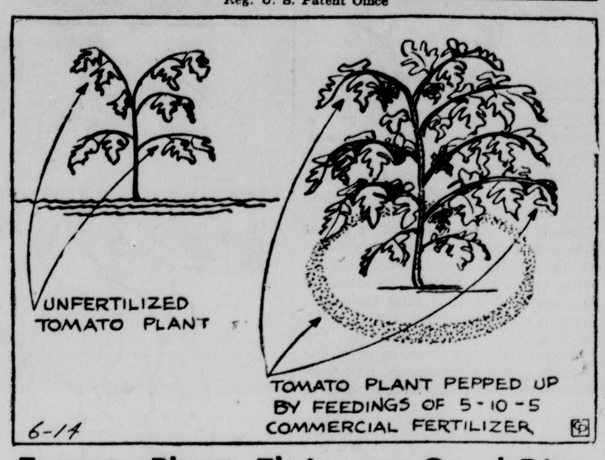

DURING THE period of pricing and testing there was very little fluctuation of prices in the comparisons, note Sherman and Lenox.

In a few cases specials were run on some individual frozen items but such special prices were not encountered frequently enough to interfere seriously with the comparison.

This study will be a help to grocery shoppers who want to make their dollar go farther. As soon as the data are summarized and analyzed, the results will be announced.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

Tomato Plants Thrive on Good Diet

TOMATO plants have healthy appetites and young ones that are given extra feedings will outgrow those that must fend for themselves.

A sprinkling of a 5-10-5 commercial fertilizer around each plant, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is one method of making them grow strong and steadily.

Sprinkle the fertilizer in a ring about four or five inches out from the main stem of each plant, as illustrated. Apply the fertilizer about once every three weeks during the summer, raking it into the ground each time.

The plants will also thrive on a liquid diet. Applications at the same frequency as for dry feedings consist of three cupfuls of commercial fertilizer per 12 quarts of water poured around each plant, but not closer than four or five inches from the stem.

It has been found that when tomato plants are given these extra feedings the seedlings are less apt to wilt, the plants set fruit earlier and then produce heavier yields.

Many gardeners prefer the liquid diet because the necessary food elements are dissolved and are immediately available for the plant roots to use. Also when they are sufficiently dissolved there is little danger of injuring the tender roots by burning them.

Some fertilizer mixtures are only partly soluble in water. To overcome this minor difficulty suspend the mixture in a bag in a container of water for a few days and it will be found that the chemicals gradually dissolve.

TIE TO THE PAST

THE REVISIONS made by Congress in extending the farm price support program emphasize the way in which this program has sought to tie farming to an era of 35 years ago. And the tie has not been broken; it has only been modified.

Alterations, to become effective in 1950, are described as an effort to take account of changes in farming methods and costs, and in relative demand for various farm products, since the period 1909 to 1914 on which price parity is based.

The changes in farming which have occurred since 1914 amount to an industrial revolution. The tractor, then an oddity, has become commonplace, and has taken over an almost endless list of jobs formerly done by draft animals, by men, and by bulky and expensive engines. The farm truck and the family auto have largely replaced the wagon and buggy and sleigh.

Electricity has brought to the farm new standards of living and new "hands" to do chores and housework. New transportation and new processing methods have brought the farm closer to the market. The market itself has changed vastly, so that new crops have been installed and once-basic crops have become secondary or disappeared.

Looking backward over all this change, the parity formula clings to the price relations of 1909 to 1914. Such a backward look, in an age called modern, is cause for misgivings.

GREEK FAILURE

THE PRIME requisite of successful aid under the Marshall Plan is cooperation on the part of the country receiving the aid. According to reports from Greece, such co-operation is not forthcoming in that country.

The Benelux countries are making headway in recovery. Britain shows progress, and France and Italy have made noticeable strides toward recovery under their own steam. In those countries private as well as public funds are being put into the national future. But reports say those who hold the purse-strings in Greece are failing to loosen them for patriotic purposes.

The whole recovery program would suffer loss of prestige and loss of effectiveness if any beneficiary nation should fail to make the best use of the aid received, or should fail to contribute as much as possible of its own strength.

Seems as if Henry Wallace can be in as many places at one time as anybody we know of.

Strangely enough, the recent Noise Abatement Week was not aimed at radio.

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

The Republican convention of 1948 in Philadelphia is different from the 1940 and the 1944 conventions in atmosphere and in the excitement of the delegates and their friends. In 1940, right here in the same hotels, with many of the current candidates also running then, with the same or similar crowds on the streets, everything seemed so synthetic — and it was. The Willkie blitz was an organized stage-managed demonstration of New York mastering the country—and it failed.

This then is the difference in atmosphere, today and then: This convention is tuned to success. More and more, the phrase is heard—"A nomination is equal to election." That, of course, may not be a true appraisal; much can happen between June and November to the country, the world and even to the candidates. But the sureness of election, the certainty that anybody can beat Truman is in the air and it affects everyone's thinking here.

That also is one reason why delegates are still holding out. It is not usual for the Monday of convention week to present so uncertain a picture. Even the candidates do not know, for sure, where they stand. The Dewey atmosphere is one of well-managed sureness; the Taft atmosphere is one of rough and tumble sureness. This sense of sureness is no fake; it is not a front for public consumption. Somehow, each of the principal contenders, at the very beginning of the convention, figures that he is in and is only working to improve his situation.

Obviously something is wrong with someone's figures because the arithmetic does not add up, but we are not dealing at this moment with figures but with atmosphere.

In 1944, the picture was different. The principal contenders were Tom Dewey and John Bricker, and Dewey had it from the start. But 1944 was not an enthusiastic convention. The atmosphere of inevitability prevailed; namely, that no one could beat Franklin D. Roosevelt and that he would be President as long as he lived. No one knew then that he would not finish out the term.

This year is very different because eventual victory is in the air. Taft and Dewey each is experiencing his third candidacy for the presidential nomination. Willkie edged them both out in 1940 and Taft or Dewey, one or the other, might have made the grade then, had they listened to friends and party leaders. The proposal was a Taft and Dewey ticket or a Dewey and Taft ticket, but neither would be a Vice President—and so Willkie's blitz went over and that curiously meaningless round of radio snortings and shoutings was called a political campaign.

This year, Taft and Dewey are equally obdurate. Neither will be Vice President. The Taft-Dewey or Dewey-Taft ticket could be nominated on the first ballot with such enthusiasm as a Republican convention never witnessed before. But that will not happen, neither Bob Taft nor Tom Dewey wants to be Vice President; neither wants to be lucky or unlucky like Harry Truman; neither wants the dull, tiresome inactivity of waiting for someone to become incapacitated or die. Both are too young, too aggressive, too fighting for Throttlebottom's job.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

ANDREW spent most of the day supervising the work in the kitchen, where he had decided to have a field day. None of these clinical-looking white kitchens for him! He could just imagine how cold and cheerless it would seem on a frigid winter morning.

Instead, he was having it wood-paneled, with a dark maroon linoleum on the floor. There would be plain white ruffled, cross-barred curtains at the windows, and some pots of geraniums between his parsley and chives on the recessed sills, and copper pans upon the walls. Wylie approved. "It'll look nice," he had volunteered, when Andrew showed him the plans.

One of the hardest things to find had been flooring for the new living room. It was only by chance that Andrew had heard of the projected razing of an old house which was falling in upon itself near the river. He had arranged to have the pick of the flooring, and while there was much that had to be discarded, the house had been large, and he had found that there would be enough for his room. A truck lumbered into the muddy driveway to deliver it now, and Andrew, going outside, recognized his friend Joshua Beadle.

"Well, I see you meant it," Beadle said, his blue eyes twinkling down at Andrew from the high driver's seat. "You said you'd settle here, and you did."

"Yes, and thanks to you, I've been very comfortable," Andrew told him warmly.

"You mean Miz Potts? Shucks, I knew you'd like it there. If she'd take you. But I guess you got a way with women—I hear she's boarding you now."

"Only until I get moved in here. But it's a great help, not to have to run into town for my meals. Let me give you a hand with that flooring."

But Beadle stood for a moment, after he climbed down, looking at the old Wheeler house with a speculative eye. "See you've got into your architect work, anyhow," he said with a chuckle. "Even though you had to do it on your own house. Well," he spat accurately into the heart of one of the lilac bushes, "might turn out to be a good piece of business at that."

The last two weeks of work on the house were so full that Mrs. Potts was certain that Andrew neither ate nor slept. "Now, you're not going to leave this house until you get some food in you," she would say, with the air of an ultimatum, standing over him in the dining room. "And no hurrying, either. It's not fair to treat good victuals like that. Why, you'll be skin and bones in no time. And look at the hollers under your eyes."

Andrew, when by accident he did glance into a mirror, thought he looked very well. His skin had a ruddy glow, and his eyes were bright. Skin and bones, he laughed to himself, letting out his belt a notch. Well, he'd lose it again when he was doing his own cooking, and working about the farm.

He wrote Bigelow to send up his furniture the third week in May. He had checked over an inventory which the butler had sent him some days before, and had decided which pieces he would want. Surprisingly, he owned more furniture than the house would hold comfortably.

He was glad that he would not have to buy any. He even had draperies, he remembered with a feeling of pleasure. Bigelow sent them up in advance of the other things. They were much too long, of course—the Delacourt ceilings had been high—but he could have them altered to fit the Wheeler windows. He took them to Mrs. McClure himself one morning, after they arrived.

He hadn't seen Joan since the night they had quarreled. Though he had looked forward to taking her to the Priests' house, her mother had telephoned that she had a cold and couldn't go. He had consoled himself that she could hardly invent a cold, when it was her employer's invitation. Surely Alec would have known whether she was faking or not. But he had so looked forward to that evening. It was to have been his chance to set things right between them. Now that he understood what was behind her attitude, he felt he might make some progress. But, he thought disconsolately, there was small chance of making headway if he didn't see her.

He had tried dropping in at the Branfield Lumber Supply Company on some business pretext or other, but both times she had been busy—once on the telephone, once trying to soothe an irate customer—and had barely nodded to him.

Mrs. McClure led the way to their third floor apartment in the old house. The furniture was shabby and cheap, and Andrew realized that all the fine antiques from Boston, which Mrs. Potts had told him about, must have been sold when Mrs. McClure was struggling to rearrange her life. Her manner was completely assured, however, despite the poor appearance of the apartment, and he understood that her values were based on more intangible things than possessions. He liked her all the more for it.

"What have you in those huge bundles?" she asked now, as he set them down on the floor of the sitting room.

"Curtains," he answered. "These used to be in my old home, and they've been in storage, but they're perfectly good, and I thought they could be made to fit my windows. If you'd take on the job," he added hastily.

"Let me see," she said noncommittally, helping him with the unwrapping. He pulled out the crewel embroidered ones which had hung in his father's bedroom. The soft blues and greens and golds of the wool swirled in an intricate design across the neutral background. Birds and flowers of Oriental imagery in muted jungle tones.

Mrs. McClure caught her breath a little. "Oh," she said, her eager fingers reaching out to touch them, "they're beautiful!"

"I thought I'd use those in the living room—you know I've converted the barn into a living room," Andrew said, "but they're all much too long. And these," he rummaged beneath the crewel embroideries and brought up a pair of hand-blocked linen draperies, "these I thought would look well in the dining room."

Mrs. McClure tore her gaze from the crewel work and stared at the linens. "Andrew," she murmured, "what magnificent material!"

"And these," he untied the second parcel, and drew forth a curtain of glazed chintz, the background a rosy apricot against which creamy flowers and yellow-green leaves spread themselves with repetitive grace. Touches of maroon and a dull blue kept the design from seeming insipid. "I have a lot of these," he said, "so I thought I'd use them in both the library and my bedroom, and perhaps have enough left for one of the upstairs rooms, as well."

Mrs. McClure fondled the chintz with knowing fingers, and did not answer. "Do you think that would be too much of a good thing?" he asked her. "I'd vary the wall coloring, of course, and I think it wouldn't be too noticeable."

"I wouldn't worry about that," she said absently. "But, Andrew, I don't see how you can bear to have me cut into these. It's a crime to waste any of this material."

"I don't intend to waste it," he said at once. "I thought I could use what was left for cushions, or save it for seat covers, or something like that."

She gave him a fleeting glance of approval. Then she sat back in her chair and stared at the glowing mass of color at her feet. "Andrew," she said suddenly, "that man you told me about—the man who used to own the Cadillac, and who lost his money—was that you?"

"Yes," he said in a low voice. Would she, too, misunderstand him, as Joan had done?

"I thought so," she said now. "I thought so at the time, but I couldn't be sure, of course. But these"—she made a small gesture toward the pile of curtains—"these spell wealth to anyone who knows good things." She straightened up, then smiled at him. "Well, I'm glad for your sake that you were able to save something when it went."

His heart skipped a beat. "You mean—you mean, you don't mind that I used to have money?" he asked.

"I'm not Joan, Andrew," she said with a little humorous twist to her mouth, "and so I don't condemn a person for having been rich. You see, Joan grew up at a time when our household was in a state of real turmoil, and she can't forget it. But I was grown, and settled in my attitude toward life, before money ever came into the picture—and all the trouble that money brought with it," she added in a low voice.

He knew that she had closed the subject, and he turned to go. "Then you'll alter these for me?" he asked, with his hand on the doorknob.

"It will be a pleasure to work with material like that, Andrew, even though it's going to hurt every time I have to cut off a piece," she answered him. He went away feeling cheered. Mrs. McClure liked him. She understood that money did not necessarily have a warping effect on character. Perhaps she could, in her quiet way, get Joan to see it, too. At any rate, it gave him something to hope for.

American circuses do not customarily show in Indian reservations or towns with an unusually large Indian population. This is because the stoical nature of the Indian precludes applause, and lack of applause makes it difficult for the performers to work.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up early, but not by choice. Close to my bedroom window a distraught cow singing a lament to the rising sun. Paid no heed to my demand that she sing elsewhere, so I dressed and went outside to make it a duet. Must have disliked my voice, for she took off up the field to join the other cows. Noted the thermometer already registering in the high 70s and did prepare for a hot day, which it turned out to be. Across the road did see wheat almost ready for the cutting and to the West corn glorying in the heat. Looks like great crops hereabouts this year.

Downtown to hear rumors of a news story in the making, one that if it develops will shake the ville more than it ever has been shaken before. But not of official record yet, and it may not be in which case some mighty sighs of relief will go up in varied spots, some high, some low.

* * *

Cecil Noecker dropped in to deliver a carton of cigarets lost to me in the Zanesville rifle match and to post a similar wager on the CORL match to be held at the local range next Sunday. And if neither of us shoots better than at Zanesville we both should sell our rifles and turn to flips. But Cecil and Jim Stout did very well in the Ohio state match held last week at Mt. Gilead, both turning in surprisingly high scores. Jim won one match and acquired a fine medal of which he is justly proud. Only one hereabouts holding such a trophy of marksmanship.

Heard of a real estate transaction in the north end that will mean another apartment house for the ville. And how we can use it and many more. Also learned of progress on the hard ball diamond at the fairground. Will be appreciated by many when it comes into use. Saw ex-mayor Bill Cady taking it easy in the shade of his front lawn. Retired and enjoying it.

Met up with a few fishermen and from all of them did hear the same no-luck tale. Well, for one thing the moon is wrong. Too much of it. Luck certainly will change as the dark of the night periods lengthen.

* * *

Passed the time of day with Charlie Glitt who is giving chicken dinners at his Main-Court restaurant for home runs in league games on the soft ball diamond. If those players keep on clouting them as they have been since Charlie's announcement he will be looking for a job as umpire.

* * *

Enjoyed an office visit by George Gearhardt, talking about a little of everything including the weather. No vacation on his summer schedule. And that is true of many others in the professional or employer class. Getting around to the point where only the job-holders can afford vacations.

* * *

Ville dead in the afternoon with most of the stores closed and few folk about. So, when the heat reached its peak did crank the wagon and turn toward home, knowing that the knob generally is productive of a breeze. Always cooler than in town. Must be that I am getting to be a farmer. No desire to leave the open spaces and return to the crowded ville.

1. What is a "babirusa"?
2. What country more than doubled in size and population after World War I?
3. What two colors combined make purple?
4. What is the difference between "wool" and "worsted"?
5. What is meant by a "common carrier"?

IT'S BEEN SAID

IT HAPPENED TODAY

On June 24, 1314, the Battle of Bannockburn secured Scottish independence. On the same date in 1497, John Cabot, Venetian navigator, reached the shore of North America. Henry Ward Beecher, brother of Novelist Harriet Beecher Stowe, and famous preacher, was born June 24, 1813, and Lord Horatio Herbert Kitchener, British secretary of state for war in World War I, was born June 24, 1850. Lord Kitchener was lost with the sinking of the British warship Hampshire in 1916, by a German mine off the Orkneys, Scotland.

MODERN MANNERS

If you are giving a man an anniversary gift of writing paper and envelopes, it is better to choose plain white or cream paper in a fairly good size with his name or initials and address either printed or engraved in black, gray, navy blue or brick red.

JOBS UPON A TIME

Aside from his horrendous roles which send chills down the spine of motion picture and radio audiences, Peter Lorre, Hungarian born actor, is a likeable fellow. When Peter was six his family moved to Vienna and, hearing of the theater from school chums, he left home at 17, bent on being an actor. He organized a theater of his own, wrote his own plays, directed and played in them, and even improvised his scenery. However, lack of funds forced him to take a clerking job from which he was fired because of his theatrical activities. From success in Germany he went to British films and came to Hollywood in 1935.

Playwright Eugene O'Neill spent his early life around theaters with his father, James O'Neill, Sr., who was an actor. In 1907 he flunked out of Princeton university and prospected for gold in British Honduras, then shipped around the world in any job he could get, finally becoming an able seaman. Next he tried reporting in New London, Conn. Reading Ibsen and Strindberg there, he decided to be a playwright and his first effort was a one-act play, Bound East for Cardiff, which was given on an old fish wharf at Cape Cod in 1915. Beyond the Horizon won him his first Pulitzer prize, Anna Christie and Strange Interlude garnered two others. His latest play is The Iceman Cometh, now on Broadway.

YOUR FUTURE

If you feel unable to cope with financial problems at this time, postpone your decisions and spend a quiet, relaxed day. This is, however, a happy and fortunate anniversary for you. There will be new interests and new friends in the year just starting.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

1. An East Indian hoglike quadruped.
2. Romania.
3. Red and blue.
4. Wool is the fine, soft hair that covers sheep and some allied animals; worsted is a twisted thread spun out of woolen yarn.
5. One who offers to the public, for a price, transportation of persons or goods, or both.

The Original Alkyl Ester of 2,4-D

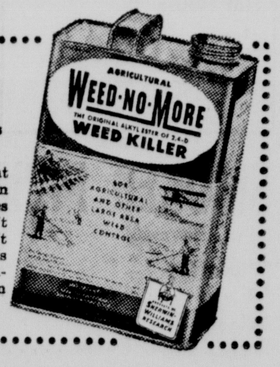

The new miracle chemical 2,4-D, offered in its most effective form in Agricultural Weed-No-More, brings you the practical, low-cost way to kill weeds in growing small grains.

Spraying Agricultural Weed-No-More on young corn is faster than cultivating, kills weeds right up to the corn plants, makes row-planting practical.

On pastures, fence rows, ditch banks, and grassed waterways, Agricultural Weed-No-More kills weeds, roots and all.

Agricultural Weed-No-More goes on fast—covers 7 to 15 acres per hour. It goes far, too—⅛ pint to 2 pints in only 5 gallons of water treats 1 acre! Apply it by the new low-gallonage method developed and proved by Sherwin-Williams Research. Use a simple, low-cost rig that you or any local shop can quickly assemble.

AGRICULTURAL WEED-NO-MORE
Costs less per acre because it controls weeds more effectively!
Agricultural authorities have found that the alkyl ester form of 2,4-D used in Agricultural Weed-No-More penetrates weed leaves within 5 minutes, doesn't wash off, mixes easily with water, won't clog or corrode spray equipment, and is harmless to stock. Agricultural Weed-No-More has been proved on more than 500,000 acres.

In 1940, right here in the same hotels, with many of the current candidates also running then, with the same or similar crowds on the streets, everything seemed so synthetic — and it was. The Willkie blitz was an organized stage-managed demonstration of New York mastering the country—and it failed.

This then is the difference in atmosphere, today and then: This convention is tuned to success. More and more, the phrase is heard—"A nomination is equal to election." That, of course, may not be a true appraisal; much can happen between June and November to the country, the world and even to the candidates. But the sureness of election, the certainty that anybody can beat Truman is in the air and it affects everyone's thinking here.

That also is one reason why delegates are still holding out. It is not usual for the Monday of convention week to present so uncertain a picture. Even the candidates do not know, for sure, where they stand. The Dewey atmosphere is one of well-managed sureness; the Taft atmosphere is one of rough and tumble sureness. This sense of sureness is no fake; it is not a front for public consumption. Somehow, each of the principal contenders, at the very beginning of the convention, figures that he is in and is only working to improve his situation.

Obviously something is wrong with someone's figures because the arithmetic does not add up, but we are not dealing at this moment with figures but with atmosphere.

In 1944, the picture was different. The principal contenders were Tom Dewey and John Bricker, and Dewey had it from the start. But 1944 was not an enthusiastic convention. The atmosphere of inevitability prevailed; namely, that no one could beat Franklin D. Roosevelt and that he would be President as long as he lived. No one knew then that he would not finish out the term.

This year is very different because eventual victory is in the air. Taft and Dewey each is experiencing his third candidacy for the presidential nomination. Willkie edged them both out in 1940 and Taft or Dewey, one or the other, might have made the grade then, had they listened to friends and party leaders. The proposal was a Taft and Dewey ticket or a Dewey and Taft ticket, but neither would be a Vice President—and so Willkie's blitz went over and that curiously meaningless round of radio snortings and shoutings was called a political campaign.

This year, Taft and Dewey are equally obdurate. Neither will be Vice President. The Taft-Dewey or Dewey-Taft ticket could be nominated on the first ballot with such enthusiasm as a Republican convention never witnessed before. But that will not happen, neither Bob Taft nor Tom Dewey wants to be Vice President; neither wants to be lucky or unlucky like Harry Truman; neither wants the dull, tiresome inactivity of waiting for someone to become incapacitated or die. Both are too young, too aggressive, too fighting for Throttlebottom's job.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

ANDREW spent most of the day supervising the work in the kitchen, where he had decided to have a field day. None of these clinical-looking white kitchens for him! He could just imagine how cold and cheerless it would seem on a frigid winter morning.

Instead, he was having it wood-paneled, with a dark maroon linoleum on the floor. There would be plain white ruffled, cross-barred curtains at the windows, and some pots of geraniums between his parsley and chives on the recessed sills, and copper pans upon the walls. Wylie approved. "It'll look nice," he had volunteered, when Andrew showed him the plans.

One of the hardest things to find had been flooring for the new living room. It was only by chance that Andrew had heard of the projected razing of an old house which was falling in upon itself near the river. He had arranged to have the pick of the flooring, and while there was much that had to be discarded, the house had been large, and he had found that there would be enough for his room. A truck lumbered into the muddy driveway to deliver it now, and Andrew, going outside, recognized his friend Joshua Beadle.

"Well, I see you meant it," Beadle said, his blue eyes twinkling down at Andrew from the high driver's seat. "You said you'd settle here, and you did."

"Yes, and thanks to you, I've been very comfortable," Andrew told him warmly.

"You mean Miz Potts? Shucks, I knew you'd like it there. If she'd take you. But I guess you got a way with women—I hear she's boarding you now."

"Only until I get moved in here. But it's a great help, not to have to run into town for my meals. Let me give you a hand with that flooring."

But Beadle stood for a moment, after he climbed down, looking at the old Wheeler house with a speculative eye. "See you've got into your architect work, anyhow," he said with a chuckle. "Even though you had to do it on your own house. Well," he spat accurately into the heart of one of the lilac bushes, "might turn out to be a good piece of business at that."

The last two weeks of work on the house were so full that Mrs. Potts was certain that Andrew neither ate nor slept. "Now, you're not going to leave this house until you get some food in you," she would say, with the air of an ultimatum, standing over him in the dining room. "And no hurrying, either. It's not fair to treat good victuals like that. Why, you'll be skin and bones in no time. And look at the hollers under your eyes."

Andrew, when by accident he did glance into a mirror, thought he looked very well. His skin had a ruddy glow, and his eyes were bright. Skin and bones, he laughed to himself, letting out his belt a notch. Well, he'd lose it again when he was doing his own cooking, and working about the farm.

He wrote Bigelow to send up his furniture the third week in May. He had checked over an inventory which the butler had sent him some days before, and had decided which pieces he would want. Surprisingly, he owned more furniture than the house would hold comfortably.

He was glad that he would not have to buy any. He even had draperies, he remembered with a feeling of pleasure. Bigelow sent them up in advance of the other things. They were much too long, of course—the Delacourt ceilings had been high—but he could have them altered to fit the Wheeler windows. He took them to Mrs. McClure himself one morning, after they arrived.

He hadn't seen Joan since the night they had quarreled. Though he had looked forward to taking her to the Priests' house, her mother had telephoned that she had a cold and couldn't go. He had consoled himself that she could hardly invent a cold, when it was her employer's invitation. Surely Alec would have known whether she was faking or not. But he had so looked forward to that evening. It was to have been his chance to set things right between them. Now that he understood what was behind her attitude, he felt he might make some progress. But, he thought disconsolately, there was small chance of making headway if he didn't see her.

He had tried dropping in at the Branfield Lumber Supply Company on some business pretext or other, but both times she had been busy—once on the telephone, once trying to soothe an irate customer—and had barely nodded to him.

Mrs. McClure led the way to their third floor apartment in the old house. The furniture was shabby and cheap, and Andrew realized that all the fine antiques from Boston, which Mrs. Potts had told him about, must have been sold when Mrs. McClure was struggling to rearrange her life. Her manner was completely assured, however, despite the poor appearance of the apartment, and he understood that her values were based on more intangible things than possessions. He liked her all the more for it.

"What have you in those huge bundles?" she asked now, as he set them down on the floor of the sitting room.

"Curtains," he answered. "These used to be in my old home, and they've been in storage, but they're perfectly good, and I thought they could be made to fit my windows. If you'd take on the job," he added hastily.

"Let me see," she said noncommittally, helping him with the unwrapping. He pulled out the crewel embroidered ones which had hung in his father's bedroom. The soft blues and greens and golds of the wool swirled in an intricate design across the neutral background. Birds and flowers of Oriental imagery in muted jungle tones.

Mrs. McClure caught her breath a little. "Oh," she said, her eager fingers reaching out to touch them, "they're beautiful!"

"I thought I'd use those in the living room—you know I've converted the barn into a living room," Andrew said, "but they're all much too long. And these," he rummaged beneath the crewel embroideries and brought up a pair of hand-blocked linen draperies, "these I thought would look well in the dining room."

Mrs. McClure tore her gaze from the crewel work and stared at the linens. "Andrew," she murmured, "what magnificent material!"

"And these," he untied the second parcel, and drew forth a curtain of glazed chintz, the background a rosy apricot against which creamy flowers and yellow-green leaves spread themselves with repetitive grace. Touches of maroon and a dull blue kept the design from seeming insipid. "I have a lot of these," he said, "so I thought I'd use them in both the library and my bedroom, and perhaps have enough left for one of the upstairs rooms, as well."

Mrs. McClure fondled the chintz with knowing fingers, and did not answer. "Do you think that would be too much of a good thing?" he asked her. "I'd vary the wall coloring, of course, and I think it wouldn't be too noticeable."

"I wouldn't worry about that," she said absently. "But, Andrew, I don't see how you can bear to have me cut into these. It's a crime to waste any of this material."

"I don't intend to waste it," he said at once. "I thought I could use what was left for cushions, or save it for seat covers, or something like that."

She gave him a fleeting glance of approval. Then she sat back in her chair and stared at the glowing mass of color at her feet. "Andrew," she said suddenly, "that man you told me about—the man who used to own the Cadillac, and who lost his money—was that you?"

"Yes," he said in a low voice. Would she, too, misunderstand him, as Joan had done?

"I thought so," she said now. "I thought so at the time, but I couldn't be sure, of course. But these"—she made a small gesture toward the pile of curtains—"these spell wealth to anyone who knows good things." She straightened up, then smiled at him. "Well, I'm glad for your sake that you were able to save something when it went."

His heart skipped a beat. "You mean—you mean, you don't mind that I used to have money?" he asked.

"I'm not Joan, Andrew," she said with a little humorous twist to her mouth, "and so I don't condemn a person for having been rich. You see, Joan grew up at a time when our household was in a state of real turmoil, and she can't forget it. But I was grown, and settled in my attitude toward life, before money ever came into the picture—and all the trouble that money brought with it," she added in a low voice.

He knew that she had closed the subject, and he turned to go. "Then you'll alter these for me?" he asked, with his hand on the doorknob.

"It will be a pleasure to work with material like that, Andrew, even though it's going to hurt every time I have to cut off a piece," she answered him. He went away feeling cheered. Mrs. McClure liked him. She understood that money did not necessarily have a warping effect on character. Perhaps she could, in her quiet way, get Joan to see it, too. At any rate, it gave him something to hope for.

THE ANSWER, QUICK!

1. What is a "babirusa"?
2. What country more than doubled in size and population after World War I?
3. What two colors combined make purple?
4. What is the difference between "wool" and "worsted"?
5. What is meant by a "common carrier"?

IT'S BEEN SAID

IT HAPPENED TODAY

On June 24, 1314, the Battle of Bannockburn secured Scottish independence. On the same date in 1497, John Cabot, Venetian navigator, reached the shore of North America. Henry Ward Beecher, brother of Novelist Harriet Beecher Stowe, and famous preacher, was born June 24, 1813, and Lord Horatio Herbert Kitchener, British secretary of state for war in World War I, was born June 24, 1850. Lord Kitchener was lost with the sinking of the British warship Hampshire in 1916, by a German mine off the Orkneys, Scotland.

MODERN MANNERS

If you are giving a man an anniversary gift of writing paper and envelopes, it is better to choose plain white or cream paper in a fairly good size with his name or initials and address either printed or engraved in black, gray, navy blue or brick red.

JOBS UPON A TIME

Aside from his horrendous roles which send chills down the spine of motion picture and radio audiences, Peter Lorre, Hungarian born actor, is a likeable fellow. When Peter was six his family moved to Vienna and, hearing of the theater from school chums, he left home at 17, bent on being an actor. He organized a theater of his own, wrote his own plays, directed and played in them, and even improvised his scenery. However, lack of funds forced him to take a clerking job from which he was fired because of his theatrical activities. From success in Germany he went to British films and came to Hollywood in 1935.

Playwright Eugene O'Neill spent his early life around theaters with his father, James O'Neill, Sr., who was an actor. In 1907 he flunked out of Princeton university and prospected for gold in British Honduras, then shipped around the world in any job he could get, finally becoming an able seaman. Next he tried reporting in New London, Conn. Reading Ibsen and Strindberg there, he decided to be a playwright and his first effort was a one-act play, Bound East for Cardiff, which was given on an old fish wharf at Cape Cod in 1915. Beyond the Horizon won him his first Pulitzer prize, Anna Christie and Strange Interlude garnered two others. His latest play is The Iceman Cometh, now on Broadway.

YOUR FUTURE

If you feel unable to cope with financial problems at this time, postpone your decisions and spend a quiet, relaxed day. This is, however, a happy and fortunate anniversary for you. There will be new interests and new friends in the year just starting.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up early, but not by choice. Close to my bedroom window a distraught cow singing a lament to the rising sun. Paid no heed to my demand that she sing elsewhere, so I dressed and went outside to make it a duet. Must have disliked my voice, for she took off up the field to join the other cows. Noted the thermometer already registering in the high 70s and did prepare for a hot day, which it turned out to be. Across the road did see wheat almost ready for the cutting and to the West corn glorying in the heat. Looks like great crops hereabouts this year.

Downtown to hear rumors of a news story in the making, one that if it develops will shake the ville more than it ever has been shaken before. But not of official record yet, and it may not be in which case some mighty sighs of relief will go up in varied spots, some high, some low.

Cecil Noecker dropped in to deliver a carton of cigarets lost to me in the Zanesville rifle match and to post a similar wager on the CORL match to be held at the local range next Sunday. And if neither of us shoots better than at Zanesville we both should sell our rifles and turn to flips. But Cecil and Jim Stout did very well in the Ohio state match held last week at Mt. Gilead, both turning in surprisingly high scores. Jim won one match and acquired a fine medal of which he is justly proud. Only one hereabouts holding such a trophy of marksmanship.

Heard of a real estate transaction in the north end that will mean another apartment house for the ville. And how we can use it and many more. Also learned of progress on the hard ball diamond at the fairground. Will be appreciated by many when it comes into use. Saw ex-mayor Bill Cady taking it easy in the shade of his front lawn. Retired and enjoying it.

Met up with a few fishermen and from all of them did hear the same no-luck tale. Well, for one thing the moon is wrong. Too much of it. Luck certainly will change as the dark of the night periods lengthen.

Passed the time of day with Charlie Glitt who is giving chicken dinners at his Main-Court restaurant for home runs in league games on the soft ball diamond. If those players keep on clouting them as they have been since Charlie's announcement he will be looking for a job as umpire.

Enjoyed an office visit by George Gearhardt, talking about a little of everything including the weather. No vacation on his summer schedule. And that is true of many others in the professional or employer class. Getting around to the point where only the job-holders can afford vacations.

Ville dead in the afternoon with most of the stores closed and few folk about. So, when the heat reached its peak did crank the wagon and turn toward home, knowing that the knob generally is productive of a breeze. Always cooler than in town. Must be that I am getting to be a farmer. No desire to leave the open spaces and return to the crowded ville.

The Original Alkyl Ester of 2,4-D

The new miracle chemical 2,4-D, offered in its most effective form in Agricultural Weed-No-More, brings you the practical, low-cost way to kill weeds in growing small grains.

Spraying Agricultural Weed-No-More on young corn is faster than cultivating, kills weeds right up to the corn plants, makes row-planting practical.

On pastures, fence rows, ditch banks, and grassed waterways, Agricultural Weed-No-More kills weeds, roots and all.

Agricultural Weed-No-More goes on fast—covers 7 to 15 acres per hour. It goes far, too—¼ pint to 2 pints in only 5 gallons of water treats 1 acre! Apply it by the new low-gallonage method developed and proved by Sherwin-Williams Research. Use a simple, low-cost rig that you or any local shop can quickly assemble.

AGRICULTURAL WEED-NO-MORE
Costs less per acre because it controls weeds more effectively!
Agricultural authorities have found that the alkyl ester form of 2,4-D used in Agricultural Weed-No-More penetrates weed leaves within 5 minutes, doesn't wash off, mixes easily with water, won't clog or corrode spray equipment, and is harmless to stock. Household Hints

If dresses have shoulder pads, make them removable by attaching small snaps. Then when you want to wash your garments or have them cleaned, simply unsnap the pads and put them back again before wearing. It makes the cleaning process much easier and also saves space in suitcases when packing for travel.

Small and sweet-flavored butterfish are excellent when pan fried. Allow two for each serving. Dip butterfish in mixture of one beaten egg and one cup water; roll in slated flour, corn meal and bread crumbs. Fry in hot skillet containing ⅛ inch melted fat. Allow about 4 min. frying time for each side.

Beverly Thornton offered prayer and the Scripture selection was read by the hostess. Pledge of allegiance to the flag and 4-H Club pledge were repeated.

Constitution of the past year was read and adopted for this year. The girls sang the club songs "Dreaming", enjoyed a recreational period and had a lunch during the session.

MONROE STITCHERS

Miss Genevieve Alley, Pickaway County home demonstration agent, spoke before a meeting of Monroe Stitchers 4-H Club in regard to projects.

Hazel Kinch, vice-president, presided for the session held in the home of Mrs. Herman Porter. Nine members answered roll call and paid their dues.

Next meeting will be June 28 in the home of Carolyn Shell.

Visitors at the meeting were Mrs. Kenneth Shell, Mrs. Fred Kinch, Mrs. Margaret Porter, Mrs. Eva Long and Grace Ellen Anderson, who joined the club.

FINE AND DANDY

The Darby Fine and Dandy Club held its last meeting in the home of James Grabill where the group discussed the 4-H Foundation, soon to get underway throughout the county.

Sketch of a Possible WHITE HOUSE HOSTESS

Hazel Whittaker Vandenberg

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg

A "NATURAL" for the job of First Lady of the land is Hazel Whittaker Vandenberg, a former schoolteacher, newspaper reporter, and social worker . . . She knows her Washington and Washington knows her and likes her breezy friendliness. . . . If her Arthur breaks the talked-about deadlock, she'll move out of their modest five-room apartment and into the White House with the greatest of ease of any of the "Ladies-in-Waiting" . . . What a time she and her "Rock of Gibralter" Maggie, the Dutch housekeeper, would have in that $50,000 kitchen, making tiny potato doughnuts (a specialty for which she's given the recipe to hundreds!) . . . Her father was a railway agent, and she an only child with no children of her own. . . . However, she mothered the three children of Arthur H. Vandenberg—Barbara and Elizabeth, both now married, and Arthur, Jr., who is campaign manager and administrative assistant for his father. . . . If Hazel Whittaker had not left her native Indiana (she was born in New Haven) to enter the University of Michigan she might never have met Arthur Vandenberg. . . . A "blind date" at a college dance and he was "engaged" at the time to Elizabeth Watson whom he later married. Hazel did not see him again for 15 years—until after the death of his wife. . . . Meanwhile, she had taught school in Saginaw, managed to corral a reporting job on a Chicago newspaper and topped it off with an advertising stint for a Detroit department store. . . . She interrupted that job to marry the rising editor of the Grand Rapids Herald and set up housekeeping in Vandenberg's old home on Morris avenue. . . . Her activities varied . . . the Delta Gamma sorority . . . YWCA . . . National Camp Fire Board . . . University of Michigan alumnae association, raising funds for the million dollar Women's League building. . . . For years Hazel Vandenberg has written a column for her home-town club magazine. . . . Today she is head of the Senate ladies (her husband is president of the Senate). . . . Recuperating from a couple of major operations, she's lost the ambitious urge to be First Lady, just as the senator has to be president. . . . But if it happens, she'll be the most popular hostess the White House has seen in many a year.

First EUB Church Setting For Nuptials

First Evangelical United Brethren church was the setting for the Tuesday evening nuptials.

The bride is a niece of Miss Vera Grubbs of South Pickaway street. Her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson of East Mound street.

Standing with the couple were Miss Rosemary Barthelmas and Paul Kirby of Circleville.

Miss Barthelmas wore an aqua dress and a corsage of red roses.

Both the new Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson were graduated by Circleville high school. He is a carpenter by trade. They will make a home in Circleville.

Members And Guests Of Union Guild Make Tour Of Cincinnati

35 Persons Enjoy Outing

Tuesday's broiling temperatures did not hinder members of the Union Guild of Jackson Township from going on a long and greatly-anticipated journey.

At dawn, the group gathered for a bus ride to Cincinnati to take in the views of that city.

Highlights of the day included a tour of radio station WLW and the "morning matinee program, Eden park, Cincinnati Conservatory, the railroad terminal and Coney Island.

Guests joining the Guild for the outing were Mrs. Austin Dowden, Mrs. Paul Counts, Mrs. Bernice Immel, Mrs. Harry Kern and daughter, Carol Lynn, Walter Bumgarner, Herbert Thomas, Miss Marybell Goodman, Mrs. Clarence Bidwell, Mrs. Lyman Riffle, Mrs. William Thomas, Miss Lois Campbell, Mrs. Elzie Brooks, Mrs. Bryan Downs, Mrs. Don Paterson, Miss Vera Jane Rhoades, Zoe Dell Riggin, Jack Linten and Betty Krimmel.

Guild members included Mrs. Roy Newland, Mrs. Sherman Campbell, Miss Addie Hill, Mrs. Henry Streitenberger, Mrs. Curtis Pyle, Mrs. Gail Linton, Mrs. Lloyd Minor, Mrs. Austin Hoover and Mrs. Lawrence Goodman.

Mrs. Marvin Routt, Mrs. Fred Riggin, Mrs. William Dudleson, Mrs. Herbert Thomas, Mrs. Henry Butts, Mrs. George Fischer and Mrs. Walter Bumgarner.

4-H News

CIRCLE SEW STRAIGHT

Members of Circle Sew Straight 4-H Club held their last meeting in the home of Marilyn Radcliff.

Beverly Thornton offered prayer and the Scripture selection was read by the hostess. Pledge of allegiance to the flag and 4-H Club pledge were repeated.

Constitution of the past year was read and adopted for this year. The girls sang the club songs "Dreaming", enjoyed a recreational period and had a lunch during the session.

MONROE STITCHERS

Miss Genevieve Alley, Pickaway County home demonstration agent, spoke before a meeting of Monroe Stitchers 4-H Club in regard to projects.

Hazel Kinch, vice-president, presided for the session held in the home of Mrs. Herman Porter. Nine members answered roll call and paid their dues.

Next meeting will be June 28 in the home of Carolyn Shell.

Visitors at the meeting were Mrs. Kenneth Shell, Mrs. Fred Kinch, Mrs. Margaret Porter, Mrs. Eva Long and Grace Ellen Anderson, who joined the club.

FINE AND DANDY

The Darby Fine and Dandy Club held its last meeting in the home of James Grabill where the group discussed the 4-H Foundation, soon to get underway throughout the county.

Household Hints

If dresses have shoulder pads, make them removable by attaching small snaps. Then when you want to wash your garments or have them cleaned, simply unsnap the pads and put them back again before wearing. It makes the cleaning process much easier and also saves space in suitcases when packing for travel.

Small and sweet-flavored butterfish are excellent when pan fried. Allow two for each serving. Dip butterfish in mixture of one beaten egg and one cup water; roll in slated flour, corn meal and bread crumbs. Fry in hot skillet containing ⅛ inch melted fat. Allow about 4 min. frying time for each side.

To prevent rusting of a flour sifter after washing and rinsing, shake it well and dry as much as possible with a soft cloth. Then place in a warm spot, over the pilot light of a gas range or near a warm electric heater unit for a few moments.

Sketch of a Possible WHITE HOUSE HOSTESS

—Hazel Whittaker Vandenberg—

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg

A "NATURAL" for the job of First Lady of the land is Hazel Whittaker Vandenberg, a former schoolteacher, newspaper reporter, and social worker . . . She knows her Washington and Washington knows her and likes her breezy friendliness. . . . If her Arthur breaks the talked-about deadlock, she'll move out of their modest five-room apartment and into the White House with the greatest of ease of any of the "Ladies-in-Waiting" . . . What a time she and her "Rock of Gibralter" Maggie, the Dutch housekeeper, would have in that $50,000 kitchen, making tiny potato doughnuts (a specialty for which she's given the recipe to hundreds!) . . . Her father was a railway agent, and she an only child with no children of her own. . . . However, she mothered the three children of Arthur H. Vandenberg—Barbara and Elizabeth, both now married, and Arthur, Jr., who is campaign manager and administrative assistant for his father . . . If Hazel Whittaker had not left her native Indiana (she was born in New Haven) to enter the University of Michigan she might never have met Arthur Vandenberg. . . . A "blind date" at a college dance and he was "engaged" at the time to Elizabeth Watson whom he later married. Hazel did not see him again for 15 years—until after the death of his wife. . . . Meanwhile, she had taught school in Saginaw, managed to corral a reporting job on a Chicago newspaper and topped it off with an advertising stint for a Detroit department store. . . . She interrupted that job to marry the rising editor of the Grand Rapids Herald and set up housekeeping in Vandenberg's old home on Morris avenue. . . . Her activities varied . . . the Delta Gamma sorority . . . YWCA . . . National Camp Fire Board . . . University of Michigan alumnae association, raising funds for the million dollar Women's League building. . . . For years Hazel Vandenberg has written a column for her home-town club magazine. . . . Today she is head of the Senate ladies (her husband is president of the Senate). . . . Recuperating from a couple of major operations, she's lost the ambitious urge to be First Lady, just as the senator has to be president. . . . But if it happens, she'll be the most popular hostess the White House has seen in many a year.

First EUB Church Setting For Nuptials

First Evangelical United Brethren church was the setting for the Tuesday evening nuptials.

The bride is a niece of Miss Vera Grubbs of South Pickaway street. Her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson of East Mound street.

Standing with the couple were Miss Rosemary Barthelmas and Paul Kirby of Circleville.

Miss Barthelmas wore an aqua dress and a corsage of red roses.

Both the new Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson were graduated by Circleville high school. He is a carpenter by trade. They will make a home in Circleville.

Localites Attend Parley

Members of the local tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, are attending various sessions of the DUV at its 59th convention in Columbus.

Delegates and alternates attending meetings which opened Sunday in the capital city, include Mrs. Irene Jenkins, Mrs. H. G. Bausum, Mrs Josieanna Moss, Mrs. Clara Delong, Miss Mary Haines, Miss Emma Mader, Mrs. J. Sam Morris.

Mrs. Frank Webbe, Mrs. James S. Carpenter, Mrs. O. C. King, Mrs. E. S. Neuding, Miss Adah Hammel, Mrs. C. O. Kerns and Mrs. E. L. Tolbert.

Inter-Church Meet Booked For July 2

The meeting of Women's Society of World Service of First Evangelical United Brethren church will be held July 2.

The affair which was originally reported as scheduled for Friday, is being arranged to entertain several other societies at an inter-church fellowship meeting. It will take place in the sanctuary.

Pierce Farm Setting Of Wiener Roast

Fourteen members of Intermediate Mixed class of First Evangelical United Brethren church enjoyed an outing at the farm of James Pierce near Circleville.

A weiner roast around a roaring fire did not "wilt" the enthusiasm of the group for a gay evening of games and contests.

Shirley Hixson presided for her first business meeting since being elected president of the class. Mrs. Carl L. Wilson accompanied the group on its outing.

GOT ANTS IN YOUR PLANTS?

County Agent Says This Is 'Insect Month' Here

The current calendar period is "insect month," according to Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent.

Realizing that county farmers and gardeners are having troubles with bugs, Best, Thursday issued the following statement on the various insects which plague the various plant life and offers suggestions on possible remedies. His statement follows:

The grayish-brown over-sized hoppers now appearing on clover and alfalfa are adult spittle bugs. They emerged from the frothy spittle that was common on the first cutting of clover and alfalfa and many other plants and weeds. They were, in part, responsible for the poor appearance and lower than average yield of clover hay.

If a farmer does not plan to pasture his second crop of clover or alfalfa, but does plan to save the second crop of clover for seed or the second crop of alfalfa for hay, dusting or spraying with DDT will more than pay for the cost of material and labor in applying it.

* * *

APPLY 1½ pounds of DDT (50 percent) wettable powder in 100 gallons of water at the rate of 150 gallons per acre, or three percent DDT dust at the rate of 30 pounds per acre. Apply to the second crop about 20 days after making the first cutting. One application is all that is necessary; leaf hoppers will also be controlled with this application.

Now is the time to spray barn walls and ceilings for flies.

Use DDT (50 percent) wettable powder at the rate of one pound in 3 gallons of water.

Time now to begin spraying cattle for flies.

Use DDT (50 percent) wettable at the rate of one pound to 12 gallons of water. This will also control lice, and control or prevent cattle grubs also.

APHIDS; On tomatoes and other plants have been going full blast for two weeks and will continue to be present about two weeks longer.

If you find small greenish, brown, red or black insects on your plants, that are not eating the foliage you have aphids.

Use two teaspoons of nicotine sulfate (Black Leaf 40) per one gallon of soapy water. Spray the underside of all leaves thoroughly; repeat in four to five days.

* * *

TOMATO BLIGHT; Is making its appearance; it is a disease starting with brownish spots on lower leaves and gradually covers the entire leaves.

Use seven percent fixed copper dust and apply at least once each week.

Several companies have a combination insect and disease, ready prepared dust, composed of DDT, rotenone, fermate and sulfur. For the average flower and vegetable gardner, this is a good dust to have and use on all plants once each week. Do not apply to cabbage for 20 days before using. DDT will injure some varieties of cucumbers.

* * *

BLACK CUTWORMS — This is a large black cutworm that is bothering in some of the land that overflowed last Spring.

This worm is sometimes called the "overflow worm". They cut off the corn above and even below the ground and they are very difficult to kill even with poisoned bran mash. If the corn is planted over immediately with an early maturing hybrid, the worms will not be present to bother by the time it gets up.

* * *

ROSE BUGS are starting to put in their appearance. Be on the lookout for them on grapes and apples. Spray with 1½ tablespoons 50 percent wettable DDT per one gallon of water.

EDUCATOR WITH VISION

Ex-Localite Is Lauded For Language Teachings

Jack E. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Brown of Circleville Route 3, currently is pioneering in the field of foreign language assignments for children in elementary grades of three to six in Lake Forest, Ill., public schools.

The young instructor, his wife and baby who are staying with his parents this Summer, is writing a book entitled "Francais en Action" to accompany his Conversational French program.

When completed the book will be the first of its kind to be used in school work. It will act as a laboratory and guide to conversation in French.

In the May bulletin of the Wisconsin Association of Modern Foreign Language Teachers is carried an article, "A Superintendent With Vision," which explains the schools' handling of these courses and the excellent results obtained.

* * *

BROWN SAID Wednesday the children who have been subject to his pioneering French course "have gone into the class with an amazing new interest in their work."

"Realizing the importance of foreign language in human affairs—, Jack E. Brown, instructor in foreign language, is endeavoring to prepare the leaders of tomorrow—the children of today—to take their places in helping to solve the problems of international cooperation, the Wisconsin article stated.

Brown was the originator of the program and interested his superintendent, F. F. Quinlau, in offering the course in Lake Forest schools.

The progressive young educator only this month received his masters degree in education from Northwestern university.

He reports his Conversational French program has received enthusiastic support from pupils, parents and teachers while gaining the attention of educators in other states.

Doctors Urged Go Easy With Allergy Cures

CHICAGO, June 24—A man practically bit a dog at the meeting of the American Medical Association here yesterday.

Dr. F. B. Schutzbank, of Tucson, Ariz., told the AMA's section on allergy that climate, even in Arizona, is no cure-all for allergic conditions.

He urged doctors to make a complete study of the patient, including the patient's bank account, before sending him off to some sunny climate in the belief that he might rid himself of his asthma, hay fever or what have you.

Among the things listed by Dr. Schutzbank as possible causes for allergies were the following: A sudden drop in the stock market, a family quarrel, or excessive smoking.

He explained that cures which seem to be worked by a change in climate often result only because the patient has left behind him his mother-in-law or any one of a number of things which brought on his allergy.

Dr. Schutzbank said many persons are potentially allergic and develop symptoms under strain.

In Central America, the pendulum clock that works perfectly in the United States would have to be regulated, because the nearer the equator, the slower the pendulum swings.

2 Ohio Youths Water Victims

COLUMBUS, June 24—John Phillips, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips of Columbus was drowned Tuesday afternoon when he slipped off a log in the Olentangy river near his home.

His brother, Harry Jr., 13, and Roland Besmernuk, 11, said they rode bicycles to a dam where they went wading. They found a log, and pushed it into deep water. The two survivors returned to shore, but they said John clung to the log until it turned over and he sank from sight.

NEWARK, June 24—Licking County chalked up its second drowning in 24 hours yesterday with the death of nine-year-old Freddy Riehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Riehl of Newark.

The boy drowned late yesterday afternoon at the Newark waterworks dam. His body was recovered at 7 p. m.

Eugene Smith New Principal At Walnut School

Eugene Smith of North Court street, a teacher of English in the Walnut Township school system for 10 years, has been promoted into the principalship of the school.

Smith fills the position made vacant at the end of the past school year by Kermit Massie, who resigned.

Smith resumed his teaching career at the Walnut school after being called into the past war, having taught there several years previously.

Other changes in Pickaway County school systems include school systems include the employment of Mrs. Elizabeth Swaney of 802 South Washington street as third grade teacher at Jackson Township school and the employment of Miss Mary Jane McKinley of Lucasville into the post of music teacher at Williamsport.

Mrs. Swaney, who taught at Madison last year, replaces Mrs. Richard Valentine, who recently resigned her position at the school for a similar post in the Erie County school system.

Miss McKinley assumes the position formerly occupied by Miss Ruth Dixon. Miss Dixon resigned from the Williamsport school following the last school year, but reportedly has made no definite plans for the future.

How to keep a Champ in Trim!

YES sir, there's a championship caliber all through that Buick of yours.

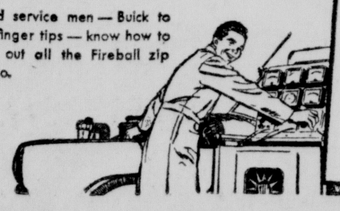

It's caliber that calls for mighty little "conditioning"—if the attention it gets adds up to really knowing and understanding care.

For instance, these Fireball cylinders will keep on packing all the wallop they should, if you let us compression-check them in the Buick way. Steering will stay easy and light, tire wear will stay at the minimum, if you keep your wheels lined up on our special tracking gauges.

And when wear does take its inescapable toll, we have the parts—Buick-engineered for their job—that restore factory-new standards of performance.

Even our tools are specially designed to do a typical Buick job—and for the personal, interested, specialized attention that tops off genuine Buick care, you simply can't beat the Buick specialists in our shop.

Yes, give your champ real Buick care—Buick know-how, Buick parts, Buick interest in keeping your car at its peak. Costs no more than ordinary attentions—but what a whale of a difference it makes!

Bacteria Found To Aid Feeds

Organisms Help Animal Digestion

WOOSTER, June 24—Contrary to popular belief, not all bacteria are troublemakers, according to Dr. Lorraine Gall, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station Department of Animal Science.

Many natural processes on the farm, such as silage making and maintenance of soil fertility, have been known for many years to be aided by bacteria.

The bacteria which help ruminants digest their food can be added to this list of helpful microorganisms. Beef, wool, and milk production are all directly dependent on helpful bacteria living in the paunch of ruminants.

Because ruminants have these bacteria living in their paunch, they can make use of roughage, such as corncobs and hay.

THE BACTERIA digest coarse roughages which would otherwise not be utilized for milk production, fattening, and wool making. These bacteria also manufacture B-vitamins, which the ruminants need for growth and reproduction.

Measurements of the bacterial population show 50,000 billion bacteria in a quart of contents taken from the paunch.

Particles of corncobs and hay, when looked at under the microscope, can be seen to be covered with bacteria which are breaking down the roughage.

Microorganisms can also digest grain and protein supplements fed to cattle and sheep, so that roughage breakdown is not their only useful contribution to the ruminants welfare. In fact it might be said that to a considerable extent it is necessary to feed the bacteria and then let the bacteria feed the animal.

Georges Guynemer was a French airman in World War I. He was born in Paris and in the war he shot down 53 German airplanes in two years. He was wounded twice and was killed at Ypres.

Methodist Meet Condemns Draft

LAKESIDE, June 24—Delegates to the Northeast Ohio conference of the Methodist church believe that universal military service would "jeopardize the peace and the economic recovery of the world."

Opposition to any form of peacetime military training was voiced yesterday by the more than 1,000 delegates in accepting a report of the social service commission of the conference, meeting here.

The report stated that UMT would "only accelerate the armament race in the world. Instead of preventing war, this race in the past led to war."

Zanesville Sees GOP Convention

ZANESVILLE, June 24—Zanesville residents were telling each other today how they saw part of the Philadelphia GOP convention last night without leaving town.

The first public demonstration of stratovision went over fine when the Westinghouse Electric Corp. and the Glenn L. Martin Co. set up ordinary receiving sets.

A high-flying plane over Pittsburgh picked up the telecasts from a ground station and relayed them over an area some 500 miles in diameter.

Gunman Believed To Be Youth, 16

NEWARK, June 24—Licking County Sheriff Roe Francis said today the gunman who held up the Red Bar cafe here Tuesday for $3,100 may be Kenneth Harter, 16, of Kirkersville, who escaped at gun-point Sunday from the Franklin County juvenile center in Columbus.

The bandit wore black gloves to hid fingerprints and had smeared mud on his face to prevent positive identification.

Columbus Police Question Brunet In Man's Death

COLUMBUS, June 24—Columbus police planned continued questioning today for an attractive brunet, Mrs. Virginia Pearson, 29, held without charge in connection with the killing of a former sheriff's deputy, Frank V. Martin, 48.

Mrs. Pearson was taken into custody shortly after 5:30 p. m. yesterday shortly after Martin fell, a victim of his own .25 calibre pistol. Her two children, Dorothy, 10, and John, 8, were placed in the Franklin County juvenile center for safe keeping.

Mrs. Pearson, a machinist at the General Motors Fisher Body Ternstedt plant, said Martin told the children he was going to kill her shortly after he arrived at her home yesterday afternoon.

When the children screamed, she said, Martin, now an auto salesman, dragged her to a couch, threw her on it and sat down himself, saying: "Doll, I'm going to kill you. If you want to, you can shoot me first."

Mrs. Pearson told Sheriff Ralph J. Paul that Martin handed her the gun but grabbed her when she tried to run from the room. She said she kicked him in the shins and the gun went off in the struggle.

Bacteria Found To Aid Feeds

Organisms Help Animal Digestion

WOOSTER, June 24—Contrary to popular belief, not all bacteria are troublemakers, according to Dr. Lorraine Gall, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station Department of Animal Science.

Many natural processes on the farm, such as silage making and maintenance of soil fertility, have been known for many years to be aided by bacteria.

The bacteria which help ruminants digest their food can be added to this list of helpful microorganisms. Beef, wool, and milk production are all directly dependent on helpful bacteria living in the paunch of ruminants.

Because ruminants have these bacteria living in their paunch, they can make use of roughage, such as corncobs and hay.

THE BACTERIA digest coarse roughages which would otherwise not be utilized for milk production, fattening, and wool making. These bacteria also manufacture B-vitamins, which the ruminants need for growth and reproduction.

Particles of corncobs and hay, when looked at under the microscope, can be seen to be covered with bacteria which are breaking down the roughage.

Microorganisms can also digest grain and protein supplements fed to cattle and sheep, so that roughage breakdown is not their only useful contribution to the ruminants welfare. In fact it might be said that to a considerable extent it is necessary to feed the bacteria and then let the bacteria feed the animal.

Georges Guynemer was a French airman in World War I. He was born in Paris and in the war he shot down 53 German airplanes in two years. He was wounded twice and was killed at Ypres.

Methodist Meet Condemns Draft

LAKESIDE, June 24—Delegates to the Northeast Ohio conference of the Methodist church believe that universal military service would "jeopardize the peace and the economic recovery of the world."

Opposition to any form of peacetime military training was voiced yesterday by the more than 1,000 delegates in accepting a report of the social service commission of the conference, meeting here.

The report stated that UMT would "only accelerate the armament race in the world. Instead of preventing war, this race in the past led to war."

Pestiferous Rain Seen Postponing Fight Again

NEW YORK, June 24—Weather forecasts early today indicated the possibility that tonight's once-postponed heavyweight title fight between Champion Joe Louis and Jersey Joe Walcott may be further delayed by pestiferous rainfall.

Inclemency, officially described as "occasional showers and thunder-showers," which caused last night's postponement, was predicted for late today and this evening.

The 34-year-old title-holder and his equally aged challenger ingisted in duet from their separate secluded quarters that delay did not and would not affect their fighting edge but they also expressed eagerness to get on with the bout.

The betting price was not materially affected either and Louis remained the choice to retain his crown at odds which swung back and forth between 2 and 1 and 12 to 5.

* * *

PROMOTER Mike Jacobs also insisted that the delay from last night had no appreciable bearing on the gate receipts. He hopes with pardonable eagerness to find his tills stuffed with about $850,000 in coarse green negotiables when the counting starts.

In the event of this encounter turning into a marathon of frustration, because of more rainfall, it will be held tomorrow night, or Saturday night or next Monday night. The Yankee Stadium is available at no extra expense until next Tuesday.

No further weigh-in is necessary. Louis officially will enter the ring at 213½ against 194¾ for the challenger as clocked by the commission yesterday before the rain washed out the proceedings.

Both fighters were concerned mainly with holding their fighting edge and keeping their weight under control.

If the postponement has any significance at all, it bears directly on Louis, who has been involved in two such delays without noticeable gain in prestige.

His bout with Max Schmeling in 1936 was postponed a day on account of the weather and the budding champion was belted out in 12 rounds. He was carried a good, gruelling 15 rounds by Tommy Farr in 1937 after a four-day postponement.

Those slightly untoward happenings were regarded as unimportant by Louis' handlers insofar as his fighting edge is concerned. They feel the delay will be even-stephen for all hands.

Red Victory Riles Chinese

NANKING, June 24—The victory of Communist troops at Kaifeng caused the Chinese parliament today to call an extraordinary closed meeting in Nanking for tomorrow.

The semi-official Central News Agency expressed the belief meanwhile that Nationalist troops are still holding some points in the northern part of the Red-controlled provincial capital of Honan.

Communist truck convoys were reported streaming away from Kaefeng with loads of equipment and supplies. The news agency said the convoys were being attacked by government planes.

8,000 Attending Church Parley

CLEVELAND, June 24—The Rev. A. Franklin Fisher of Brooklyn was to deliver the keynote address of the 43d annual convention of the National Sunday School and Baptist Training Union Congress here today.

More than 8,000 delegates, with an additional 3,000 expected are on hand for the six-day convention which opened yesterday. Registration officials said the attendance was the heaviest in many years.

Election of officers will take place tomorrow. The convention closes Sunday.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The Cominform is meeting again.

The conference site for the satellite agents of the Soviet Union is near the castle of Former King Michael of Romania at Sinaia outside Bucharest.

For weeks international observers have seen signs of a radical alteration in Moscow's international policies.

Three factors in the apparent shift seem of importance:

1. The continued and unbroken efforts by Soviet military leadership to make the situation in Berlin untenable for the American and British occupational forces.

2. The apparent falling off in Soviet prestige as a direct result of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia, the death of Jan Masaryk and the resignation of Dr. Eduard Benes as president.

3. A more tractable an softer Soviet attitude in the United Nations deliberations which to some experts is of doubtful sincerity and a cloak for intensified Soviet maneuvers to torpedo the Marshall Plan and Democratic systems everywhere.

* * *

THE EVENTS in Czechoslovakia and Finland have taken a most curious turn.

Klement Gottwald, the new Communist president, has been reduced to the necessity of proclaiming a political amnesty in an effort to prove that Czechoslovakia is "not a police state."

Apologists for the new Czechoslovakia are on the radio day in and day out.

In Finland, the Communists obviously are losing ground. It seems fairly certain that conservative elements will hold their own in elections scheduled for July 1 and 2.

Another factor that may be of importance to the Cominform at the present time is the beginning of an exodus from Romania—which may indicate a mounting Red terrorism in Bucharest or may merely signify disillusionment.

Just how the Cominform will choose to deal with this situation is anybody's guess. It may seek to work on a divided America in this pre-election period. Or it may decide that the time has come to lie low and not force any failing issue.

The surface of the Caspian sea is 40 feet lower than it was in the 14th century.

Friends Of Land Set For Parley

ATHENS, June 24 — The Friends of the Land will hold their seventh annual conference on conservation here Saturday and Sunday. Some 300 delegates are expected.

A tour of the scenic areas of Southeastern Ohio, including Lake Hope, Zaleski Forest and Ash Cave, will precede the conference Friday.

Cop Is Facing Demotion Today

ASHTABULA, June 24—Police Lt. Dominic Zalimeni of Ashtabula faced possible demotion to a patrolman today.

Zalimeni, against whom demotion proceedings were launched June 9, filed with City Manager R. M. Hoisington yesterday a denial of charges made against him listed countercharges of "laxity in police supervisions."

Hoisington made no comment other than he had Zalimeni's answer on his desk for study. The order, if upheld by the city manager, is effective today.

Pestiferous Rain Seen Postponing Fight Again

NEW YORK, June 24—Weather forecasts early today indicated the possibility that tonight's once-postponed heavyweight title fight between Champion Joe Louis and Jersey Joe Walcott may be further delayed by pestiferous rainfall.

Inclemency, officially described as "occasional showers and thunder-showers," which caused last night's postponement, was predicted for late today and this evening.

The 34-year-old title-holder and his equally aged challenger insisted in duet from their separate secluded quarters that delay did not and would not affect their fighting edge but they also expressed eagerness to get on with the bout.

The betting price was not materially affected either and Louis remained the choice to retain his crown at odds which swung back and forth between 2 and 1 and 12 to 5.

• • •

PROMOTER Mike Jacobs also insisted that the delay from last night had no appreciable bearing on the gate receipts. He hopes with pardonable eagerness to find his tills stuffed with about $850,000 in coarse green negotiables when the counting starts.

In the event of this encounter turning into a marathon of frustration, because of more rainfall, it will be held tomorrow night, or Saturday night or next Monday night. The Yankee Stadium is available at no extra expense until next Tuesday.

No further weigh-in is necessary. Louis officially will enter the ring at 213½ against 194¾ for the challenger as clocked by the commission yesterday before the rain washed out the proceedings.

Both fighters were concerned mainly with holding their fighting edge and keeping their weight under control.

If the postponement has any significance at all, it bears directly on Louis, who has been involved in two such delays without noticeable gain in prestige.

His bout with Max Schmeling in 1936 was postponed a day on account of the weather and the budding champion was belted out in 12 rounds. He was carried a good, gruelling 15 rounds by Tommy Farr in 1937 after a four-day postponement.

Those slightly untoward happenings were regarded as unimportant by Louis' handlers insofar as his fighting edge is concerned. They feel the delay will be even-stephen for all hands.

Red Victory Riles Chinese

NANKING, June 24—The victory of Communist troops at Kaifeng caused the Chinese parliament today to call an extraordinary closed meeting in Nanking for tomorrow.

The semi-official Central News Agency expressed the belief meanwhile that Nationalist troops are still holding some points in the northern part of the Red-controlled provincial capital of Honan.

Communist truck convoys were reported streaming away from Kaefeng with loads of equipment and supplies. The news agency said the convoys were being attacked by government planes.

8,000 Attending Church Parley

CLEVELAND, June 24—The Rev. A. Franklin Fisher of Brooklyn was to deliver the keynote address of the 43d annual convention of the National Sunday School and Baptist Training Union Congress here today.

More than 8,000 delegates, with an additional 3,000 expected are on hand for the six-day convention which opened yesterday. Registration officials said the attendance was the heaviest in many years.

Election of officers will take place tomorrow. The convention closes Sunday.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The Cominform is meeting again.

The conference site for the satellite agents of the Soviet Union is near the castle of Former King Michael of Romania at Sinaia outside Bucharest.

For weeks international observers have seen signs of a radical alteration in Moscow's international policies.

Three factors in the apparent shift seem of importance:

1. The continued and unbroken efforts by Soviet military leadership to make the situation in Berlin untenable for the American and British occupational forces.

2. The apparent falling off in Soviet prestige as a direct result of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia, the death of Jan Masaryk and the resignation of Dr. Eduard Benes as president.

3. A more tractable an softer Soviet attitude in the United Nations deliberations which to some experts is of doubtful sincerity and a cloak for intensified Soviet maneuvers to torpedo the Marshall Plan and Democratic systems everywhere.

• • •

THE EVENTS in Czechoslovakia and Finland have taken a most curious turn.

Klement Gottwald, the new Communist president, has been reduced to the necessity of proclaiming a political amnesty in an effort to prove that Czechoslovakia is "not a police state."

Apologists for the new Czechoslovakia are on the radio day in and day out.

In Finland, the Communists obviously are losing ground. It seems fairly certain that conservative elements will hold their own in elections scheduled for July 1 and 2.

Another factor that may be of importance to the Cominform at the present time is the beginning of an exodus from Romania—which may indicate a mounting Red terrorism in Bucharest or may merely signify disillusionment.

Just how the Cominform will choose to deal with this situation is anybody's guess. It may seek to work on a divided America in this pre-election period. Or it may decide that the time has come to lie low and not force any failing issue.

The surface of the Caspian sea is 40 feet lower than it was in the 14th century.

Friends Of Land Set For Parley

ATHENS, June 24 — The Friends of the Land will hold their seventh annual conference on conservation here Saturday and Sunday. Some 300 delegates are expected.

A tour of the scenic areas of Southeastern Ohio, including Lake Hope, Zaleski Forest and Ash Cave, will precede the conference Friday.

Cop Is Facing Demotion Today

ASHTABULA, June 24—Police Lt. Dominic Zalimeni of Ashtabula faced possible demotion to a patrolman today.

Zalimeni, against whom demotion proceedings were launched June 9, filed with City Manager R. M. Hoisington yesterday a denial of charges made against him listed countercharges of "laxity in police supervisions."

Hoisington made no comment other than he had Zalimeni's answer on his desk for study. The order, if upheld by the city manager, is effective today.

Lairmont Farms Dispersal Sale

Saturday, June 26 -- 11 A.M.

Farm located on State Route 23, 17 miles south of Columbus, Ohio, and 6 miles north of Circleville, Ohio, at Little Walnut.

80 — H E A D — 80

Comprised of 60 head of Purebred Holsteins 20 head of Grades.

There are including the great sire and Dam of the National and State champions, with 30 paternal sisters and brothers of the National Champion. There are cows in this sale in all stages of lactation, from fresh to heavy springers, yearling heifers and heifer calves.

There are cows milking as high as 100 lbs. per day on test and will finish with records of over 20,000 lbs. of milk and 700 lbs. B. F.

This is an opportunity to purchase these great animals at your own price, that have been bred and picked by good judges for both type and production and they will speak for themselves in the sales ring.

ZELDENRUST KORNDYKE CORNUCOPIA NO. 771040 SELLING

This bull is an exceptional sire when you consider the true value of a bull's transmitting qualities. His mother was and may still be, a State Champion with 803 lbs. B.F. in 320 days on 2X as a 3 year old. His four paternal sisters were never defeated as a Get of Sire group. One was nominated for All-American twice and was the only senior yearling ever to win the Senior Grand Championship at Ohio State Fair. Cornucopia was in the show ring twice in 1941; was Junior Champion at Missouri, and a prize winner at Waterloo. In 1944 he was shown against a $5,500.00 bull and won a very close second. He is the sire of the new National Champion Senior 2 year old 16,611 lbs. milk, 4.5 test; 746.6 lbs. B.F. 290 days on 2X (picture in March 15th issue Holstein World). Also Zidenrust Burton Plus Cornucopia 2390305, Champion Junior 3 yr. old of Ohio 21,388 lbs. milk, 820.2 B.F. 3.8 test in 11 months 14 days. His 16 AR tested daughters have records averaging over 500 lbs. B.F. with a 4% test as 2 year olds, and on a 2X day milking.

Also selling ZELDENRUST PLUS BURTON 2089587 dam of these two great champions, bred to the Zeldenrust Korndyke Cornucopia, the sire of these champions. The 20 Grade Holsteins selling are big rugged dairy type cows capable of large production. If interested in good foundation stock and calf club heifers or bulls of serviceable age, don't miss this sale.

Sale starts 11:00 a. m.

Lairmont Farms Dispersal Sale

Saturday, June 26 -- 11 A.M.

Farm located on State Route 23, 17 miles south of Columbus, Ohio, and 6 miles north of Circleville, Ohio, at Little Walnut.

80 — H E A D — 80

Comprised of 60 head of Purebred Holsteins 20 head of Grades.

There are including the great sire and Dam of the National and State champions, with 30 paternal sisters and brothers of the National Champion. There are cows in this sale in all stages of lactation, from fresh to heavy springers, yearling heifers and heifer calves.

There are cows milking as high as 100 lbs. per day on test and will finish with records of over 20,000 lbs. of milk and 700 lbs. B. F.

This is an opportunity to purchase these great animals at your own price, that have been bred and picked by good judges for both type and production and they will speak for themselves in the sales ring.

ZELDENRUST KORNDYKE CORNUCOPIA NO. 771040 SELLING

This bull is an exceptional sire when you consider the true value of a bull's transmitting qualities. His mother was and may still be, a State Champion with 803 lbs. B.F. in 320 days on 2X as a 3 year old. His four paternal sisters were never defeated as a Get of Sire group. One was nominated for All-American twice and was the only senior yearling ever to win the Senior Grand Championship at Ohio State Fair. Cornucopia was in the show ring twice in 1941; was Junior Champion at Missouri, and a prize winner at Waterloo. In 1944 he was shown against a $5,500.00 bull and won a very close second. He is the sire of the new National Champion Senior 2 year old 16,611 lbs. milk, 4.5 test; 746.6 lbs. B.F. 290 days on 2X (picture in March 15th issue Holstein World). Also Zidenrust Burton Plus Cornucopia 2390305, Champion Junior 3 yr. old of Ohio 21,388 lbs. milk, 820.2 B.F. 3.8 test in 11 months 14 days. His 16 AR tested daughters have records averaging over 500 lbs. B.F. with a 4% test as 2 year olds, and on a 2X day milking.

Also selling ZELDENRUST PLUS BURTON 2089587 dam of these two great champions, bred to the Zeldenrust Korndyke Cornucopia, the sire of these champions. The 20 Grade Holsteins selling are big rugged dairy type cows capable of large production. If interested in good foundation stock and calf club heifers or bulls of serviceable age, don't miss this sale.

Mumaws Win 11-9 As Millirons Ponder On 'Who's On First'

Mumaws softball team won its first game in the second round of the Circleville Night Softball League at Ted Lewis Park Wednesday night when it downed Millirons 11-9.

The Milliron aggregation was more than a trifle confused in the tilt, most of the confusion centering around the fielding of bunts.

On a Mumaw bunt, practically the whole Milliron infield raced to first base to back the throw, which was not forthcomig since there was no one left to field the ball. One Mumaw batter gained second base on a bunt which trickled past Milliron Pitcher Eddie Baughn into the second base slot, vacated by the second sacker who was covering first with the rest of the team.

Millirons grabbed off a brace of runs in the first inning of the contest and held the lead by blanking Mumaws in its half the first frame.

* * *

THE MILLIRON second inning was short, with the first two men up whiffing out and the third hitting an easy grounder to Mumaw Shortstop Bob Steele.

Mumaw batters in their half the inning, however, stole the lead from Millirons by scoring five markers on two hits and three walks.

Harold Stonerock, centerfielder for the Mumaw team, saved the lead for his squad in the Milliron half of the third inning when, with two Milliron men on base, he dove for a line drive at shoestring height, and came up from his tumble with a dirt face and his hand on the ball for the last Milliron out. Millirons had scored one run in the inning.

The Mumaw bat yielded two runs in the last of the third, making the score 7-2, and added another four in the next inning to lead 11-3.

Millirons squeezed in single tally in the first of the fifth inning to cut the lead to 11-4.

In the sixth inning Stonerock deserted his duties in centerfield and took over the mound for Mumaws, holding the opposition scoreless, although causing a minor rhubarb concerning the legality of his pitch by members of the Milliron team.

Stonerock got into trouble in the last inning of play. With one out, Stonerock gave out four walks, hit one batter and made an error, allowing three runs to cross the plate.

* * *

THE MUMAW manager quickly inserted another pitcher, Eugene Wilson, who promptly walked another run. Still another scored on a fielder's choice before the side was retired. Millirons last inning drew them to within two runs of a tie, the game ending at the 11-9 score.

Thursday night's card at Ted Lewis Park calls for Mumaws to play Isalys in the first of a two-of-three game series for the championship of the first round of play. The game is slated for 8:15 p. m.

On Friday the second game of the series is to be held, beginning at 7:15 p. m., to be followed by an exhibition game between the Circleville All-Stars and Dayton Cabs. Members of the all-star team will be announced Friday.

League heads have called a manager's meeting for 7 p. m. Friday at the park.

Following is the box score of the Wednesday night Mumaw win:

4 New Teams Formed At Park

Four new teams were formed at Ted Lewis Park's supervised Summer playground program Wednesday afternoon, two boy's clubs and two teams with girl members.

The girl's teams are the Yellow Jackets, piloted by Lena Hill, and the Panthers, managed by Bonnie Beck.

Boy's teams are the Tigers, with Eddie Tomlinson as manager and the Giants, captained by Joe McConnell.

The two boy's clubs are for youngsters between the ages of 8 and 11, and are slated to play a "Junior World's Series" later in the season with prizes awarded winners and losers.

Jim Kirkpatrick, who supervises play at the Park, said Thursday there was to be a "bubble gum hunt" on Friday to end the second week of activities at the playground.

The bubblegum will be hidden throughout the park, according to Kirkpatrick, and odd pieces of the blowup material probably will turn up weeks after the scheduled search.

Local Legion '9' Clips Hillsboro Following Rally

The Circleville American Legion Junior baseball team chalked up its fifth victory in as many starts Wednesday when it edged Hillsboro, 4-3 in a game played in Ashville Community Park.

Both squads were blanked in the first inning of play, but Hillsboro made the first move of the game in the second inning, taking the lead with one run while blanking the Circleville squad.

Next score in the ball game was in the third inning when Hillsboro piled on another two runs to lead, 3-0.

Circleville's first score of the game came in the fourth inning, the locals scoring a pair to cut the visitor's lead to 3-2. They tied the score at 3-all in the next frame.

In the eighth inning, Circleville iced the tilt after holding Hillsboro scoreless by scoring a single tally to win by 4-3.

* * *

The Legion's next game is slated in Ashville at 2 p. m. Sunday against Wilmington.

I see the Treasury Department has decided the "simplified" income tax form is too involved. This comes as no great surprise to millions of folks who have worn their heads to the bone trying to nail the tax down on paper. It's the W-2, the withholding form, that is wrinkling the Washington foreheads. Originally, the W-2 seemed like a good idea, but they say it has developed more "bugs" than a neglected corn patch. The simplified "simplified" form won't be ready till next year. The local cynic suggests the tax forms should read . . . "How much have you got? Send it in." However, that's carrying simplification too far!

New York fashion designers say hobble skirts will be back this Fall. If they put that one over, the next step will probably be high button shoes. NEWS VIEWS

BY JOE MOATS

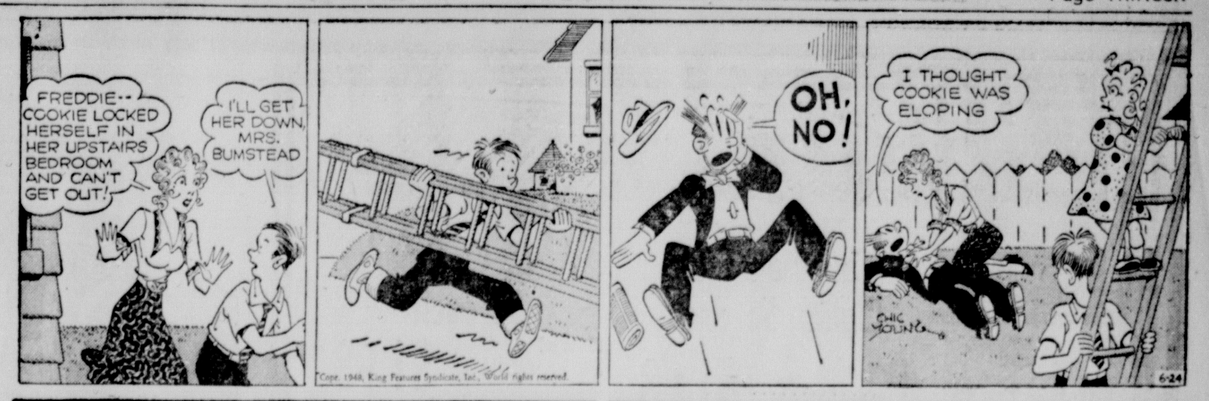

I see the Treasury Department has decided the "simplified" income tax form is too involved. This comes as no great surprise to millions of folks who have worn their heads to the bone trying to nail the tax down on paper. It's the W-2, the withholding form, that is wrinkling the Washington foreheads. Originally, the W-2 seemed like a good idea, but they say it has developed more "bugs" than a neglected corn patch. The simplified "simplified" form won't be ready till next year. The local cynic suggests the tax forms should read . . . "How much have you got? Send it in." However, that's carrying simplification too far!

New York fashion designers say hobble skirts will be back this Fall. If they put that one over, the next step will probably be high button shoes. You'll effectively hobble your budget by patronizing JOE MOATS MOTOR SALES, 159 East Franklin Street.
